

PRELIMINARY STEPS TAKEN FOR BRITISH DEBT PARLEY

Stimson, Left in Charge of Advance Negotiations by Roosevelt, Has Conference With English Ambassador Lindsay.

SESSION MAY OPEN SOON AFTER MARCH 4

May Extend to Other Nations and Involve Tariff Concessions—Whatever Action Is Taken Must Be Approved by Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Diplomatic machinery was set in full motion on both sides of the Atlantic today to bring the United States and Great Britain together early in March for a new examination of war debts.

A joint agreement between President Hoover and his successor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, opened the way for the appointment of a British mission to meet American representatives here soon after March 4 to discuss the debts.

Within a few hours after the incoming and outgoing chief executives had decided on diplomatic channels—advocated by Mr. Roosevelt—as the avenue for an approach to the problem, Secretary of State Stimson summoned the English Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and informed him of the agreement reached yesterday afternoon by the two leaders in an extraordinary White House conference.

Statement on Debts.

Stimson gave Lindsay no written communication. After making it clear he was acting as a spokesman for Mr. Roosevelt, he informed the ambassador orally and at length of what had passed between Mr. Hoover and the President-elect, and of the contents of the statement they later issued. The statement follows:

"The British Government has asked for a discussion of the debts. The incoming administration will be glad to receive their representative early in March for this purpose.

"It is of course, necessary to discuss at the same time the world economic problems in which the United States and Great Britain are mutually interested, and therefore, that representatives should also be sent to discuss ways and means for improving the world situation.

"That was the first step in the new negotiations which may lead to a general review of debts owed by all foreign nations which have but their regular installments.

"There was little immediate comment from leaders of Congress, but there were some private expressions against cancellation or reduction. The expectation was general that the Government would accept the invitation to name envoys.

"Saves Roosevelt a Month.

"To Mr. Roosevelt the arrangement means the saving of a month in seeking a path to improved world economic conditions. The Hoover-Roosevelt agreement also provides for a discussion of economic problems, and there was speculation that the new President might make the talks with Great Britain the basis for tariff concessions as a means of opening up markets for American products.

"Mr. Roosevelt went south, but he left Secretary Stimson to carry out the preliminary negotiations. From the south came word that the Democratic leader does not regard France's failure to pay on Dec. 15 as a default, but rather as a default. This result in congressional approval of a new debt basis before June 15, the next payment.

ONLY ONE MORE STATE NEEDED TO WIPE OUT 'LAME DUCK' SESSIONS

SANTA FE, N. M., Jan. 21.—NEW MEXICO, today became the thirty-fifth state to ratify the Federal Constitution abolishing the "lame duck" session of Congress. The approval of only one more state is needed to complete the ratification.

The thirty-fourth state to ratify the Norris amendment was Idaho. Yesterday final action was taken by South Dakota and Tennessee.

MRS. ROOSEVELT FLIES IN FOG AFTER BEING FORCED DOWN

CLERK, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived at Cleveland Airport on a United Air liner at 12:45 p. m. and was rushed to a waiting New York Central train at the Linndale Station to complete a journey to Chicago.

Fog between here and Chicago made impossible the completion of her trip by air. She will address the Illinois League of Women Voters at Chicago tonight, her train being due there at 7:30 p. m.

When the air liner struck fog around Bellefonte, Pa., and was forced down, the pilot consulted Mrs. Roosevelt.

"Well, I must reach Chicago early tonight," she said, "otherwise I shall have to turn back."

And then as an afterthought: "Let's go on," she suggested.

The plane took off, but again ran into thick weather at 3500 feet. Three other women in the plane appeared nervous. Mrs. Roosevelt chatted and laughed, suggesting that they soon would come out above the "soup."

"I'm rather used to this," she said, and soon the other passengers were in a gay mood.

RULES STIMSON'S $5000 AUTO WILL DO FOR SUCCESSOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The House Appropriations Committee has decided that whoever is Secretary of State after March 4 should be satisfied with the second-hand $5000 automobile he will inherit from Henry J. Stimson. It reported to the House a bill today appropriating money for the State Department for 1934 but disallowed $5000 asked for a new machine.

Wilbur J. Carr, assistant Secretary of State, told the committee: "The Secretary's idea in permitting this estimate to go in was that, while it was of no interest to him personally, he thought it was fair to his successor to make an estimate for a new car in the event that the next Secretary of State should find that a new car was needed in 1934."

ALASKAN CAMP FOOD SHORTAGE Supplies Rushed by Boat to Ice-locked Harbor

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Jan. 21.—Residents of Windham Bay, a mining camp 180 miles north of here, reported in message yesterday that their harbor had been ice-locked for several weeks and that food supplies were running low.

The Coast Guard cutter Aler sailed last night with food and mail and will attempt to break a way into the harbor.

22 SAVED AT SEA AFTER ALL-DAY FIGHT IN STORM

American Merchant Tows Lifeboat Back and Forth to Sinking Freighter in Atlantic Gale.

SKIPPER AND THREE MEN ARE KILLED

Capt. Stedman Is Hero Again—Rescued 28 in 1925 When He Was on President Harding.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The liner American Merchant plowed through heavy seas today toward New York, bearing 22 sailors rescued yesterday from the small British freighter Exeter City, which sank in a severe storm in the Atlantic Ocean.

Capt. Giles Stedman of Quincy, Mass., master of the American Merchant, expected to get his ship here by Tuesday with the survivors.

The skipper of the Exeter City, Capt. E. D. Legg, was swept to death with his third officer and two men.

Capt. Stedman in 1925 saved 28 men from the Italian steamship Ignazio Florio. Then he was chief officer of the liner President Harding.

Sending of S O S.

The Exeter City, out of Fowey, England, carrying china clay for Portland, Mo., was about 600 miles east of Cape Race, Newfoundland, at dawn yesterday when its crew saw it was losing its struggle with the elements. About 15 miles away the American Merchant, west-bound, caught the S O S.

Three hours later the helpless Exeter City was sighted. The bridge, chartroom and part of the saloon were gone. The No. 2 hatch was holed. Sleet drove like shrapnel.

An all-day fight began. Heavy seas prevented attempts to launch lifeboats. Onyx was the last to be released. The American Merchant's line gun fired rubber bullets toward the Exeter City in an effort to get a line to it. At last the struggle to link the two ships succeeded.

By a desperate and unusual method, the towing of a lifeboat back and forth between the two ships, the 22 men were finally tried to safety. Then the last of Stedman's radio messages to shore: "Vessel abandoned in sinking condition, settling rapidly."

The day's events were told dramatically in wireless messages.

The first, from the Exeter City: "In distress. Lifeboats gone. Bridge damaged."

The next message was sent after Capt. Stedman had started the rescue. It said: "American Merchant not yet arrived."

A message from Capt. Stedman: "Bridge, chartroom, forward part of ship missing. Sleet drove like shrapnel. Master, third officer, apprentice and seaman lost. No. 2 hatch stove in. Water believed in No. 3 hatch. Rigged up emergency steering gear."

The next message: "Exeter City reports sinking rapidly. Am alongside. High seas. Using line-carrying gun."

Capt. Stedman reported the weather "considerably unfavorable, strong westerly gale, high seas, rain and hail."

Then: "Shot line aboard Exeter City. Towed lifeboat over. Endeavoring get crew aboard for last hour."

Later: "Steamship Exeter City abandoned in sinking condition. Settling rapidly. Dangerous to navigation."

Then came success: "Twenty-two men composing crew of Exeter City aboard. Rescue made. Lifeboat holed. Vessel abandoned sinking condition. Settling rapidly. Advise Bristol City Lines, Bristol, England."

Previous Rescue by Stedman.

Capt. Stedman received a silver medal from the Italian Ministry of Marine and a gold medal of honor from the United States Treasury Department, for the rescue in 1925.

Capt. Paul Grening brought the President Harding alongside the Italian ship about midnight, but rough seas prevented the launching of lifeboats.

Two of the President Harding's lifeboats were smashed in attempts to reach the Exeter. Several tons of oil were pumped into the sea. Finally, shortly after sunrise, Chief Officer Stedman put out in a lifeboat with six men and an interpreter. The 25 men were taken off just before the freighter sank.

Two Earthquakes in California.

CALEXICO, Cal., Jan. 21.—Two sharp earthquakes were felt here today, the first at 8:30 a. m., the second at 10 a. m. No damage was reported. A brief, heavy rainfall preceded the disturbances, flooding some highways in the eastern section of Imperial Valley.

LIONS ARE KILLED AFTER ONE FINALLY GOES INTO ACTION

Wright and Friend Shoot Beast as It Makes Rush, and His 14-Year-Old Son Dispatches It.

SECOND PRODDED INTO MOTION, SLAIN

Hunters Set About Job of Mopping Up After a Melancholy Night of Rain and Roars.

WOLF ISLAND, Mo., Jan. 21.—Denver M. Wright's playful lions were killed ignominiously on a Mississippi River island eight miles south of here today, after they had resolutely refused to leave the vicinity of Wright's "African" hunting camp.

One of them was shot and wounded by Wright and another member of the party when he rushed the leather goods manufacturer of Brentwood, St. Louis County. The finishing shot was administered to the beast a few minutes later by Wright's 14-year-old son, Charles, as the lion, too seriously wounded to move, lay on the grass.

The second, which retired a few feet to a hyacinth when its companion was shot, was killed a half hour later, after it had finally been roused from its lethargy and provoked to a show of spunk by an individual known as "Indian Joe," who prodded it in the ribs with a stick.

Four riflemen, including Wright and his son, shot the beast down as it started toward the party. The lion was killed less than 300 feet from the edge from which they were released yesterday morning.

Hard on Movie Men.

When the Wright party left their tent at dawn today, the heavy rain of the night had abated to a light drizzle—miserable light for the movie photographers whom Wright had hired to record the hunt in celluloid.

Nevertheless, today was necessarily the day for the hunt. The lions released at 10:30 a. m. yesterday had not for a moment been out of sight of camp. During the night they howled and growled distressingly, bringing an unfeeling uneasiness to the members of the party, huddling miserably under leaky tents.

To the guards who kept vigil during the night reported that several times they saw the glowing eyes of the more active of the lions, not 10 feet from the barbed wire fence that encircled the camp.

At dawn the beasts were about 50 feet from the camp, one of them sitting down and eyeing the hunters, the other still gamboling playfully, rubbing its back against trees and playfully making passes with its paw at its lethargic companion.

Well, it was a situation that had to be met. After a conference it was decided to forego the motion pictures, made impossible by the continuing rain, and kill the lions, which were fast becoming an intolerable nuisance.

In pursuance of the plan, Wright, his son, Ted Bennett of Dorena, Mo., and John Clift of East Prairie armed themselves with rifles. The rest of the party equipped themselves with pots, pans and sticks and set out for the task of trying to make the lions go away and hide.

Lions Hold Their Ground.

The lions resolutely refused to cooperate. They retreated about 50 yards, then the more inactive animal sat down. The other walked off about 50 feet and also sat down. Wright and his riflemen made an encircling movement, to scare them off, but they still stood fast, although the members of the party made a great din, beating on pans, shouting, and throwing sticks at the animals.

Finally Wright and the riflemen approached to within 25 feet of the more obstinate of the lions. The animal growled, flattened its ears. Suddenly it sprang to its feet. Bennett and Wright fired instantly and the animal, bleeding from a wound in the body, turned and retreated.

Heading back toward the camp the wounded animal was joined by the other. A hundred feet from the scene of the shooting the lions lay down on the ground, near the water's edge. The other went back about 50 feet and lay down on a hummock.

Wright decided the "honor" of killing the wounded beast should go to his son, after futile efforts had been made to make the stricken animal run away. Young Wright drilled it neatly through the head. It yawned widely, shook itself a few times and died.

The party then proceeded to the Police Fighting With Rioters in Chicago Street

SEVEN Chicago policemen were knocked down by rioters when several hundred unemployed descended on a relief station. Seventy-five policemen participated in the melee. SUPERVISING CAPTAIN OF POLICE JOHN HOBAN and an officer who went to his rescue are shown lying in the street after they were downed. At left is a plain clothes officer sagging under the blows of one of the rioters, shown striking him. The rioters used pieces of two-by-four lumber for clubs.

LAWYER IN HOSPITAL AFTER TAKING POISON

Conrad Paeben Found Unconscious in Auto in Garage at Home.

Conrad Paeben, an attorney in the Paul Brown Building, is in serious condition at St. Anthony's Hospital suffering from the effects of poison, which he drank late yesterday afternoon in the garage back of his home, 4960A Finkman avenue.

The major trouble, near Garfield Park, was quelled after 20 minutes of fighting, but police had a busy afternoon elsewhere. Three other demonstrations occurred on the north and west sides, but soon were quelled.

Ten men, their faces battered, were arrested.

WOMAN AND CHILD KILLED, 19 HURT IN TEXAS TORNADO

Storm Strikes Manchester, Glory and Other Towns in Northeast Part of State.

PARIS, Tex., Jan. 21.—At least two persons were killed when a tornado swept a 35-mile strip of North-east Texas farming country last night. Link Brown, Negro, and his year-old child, living on a farm east of Manchester, lost their lives in the wreckage of their home. Nineteen others are known to have been injured when the tornado struck in the neighborhood of Howland and moved northeastward to Manchester.

SENATE VOTES EXTENSION OF GLASS-STEAGALL ACT

House Has Yet to Act on Bill Providing Expansion of "Free Gold" Supply.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The Senate today voted to extend for another year the provisions of the Glass-Steagall act for expansion of the "free gold" supply. The House has yet to act. Presidential approval is expected.

Senator Glass (Dem., Virginia), offered the bill. It would permit a continuation for a year dating from March 3 next of the authority for Federal Reserve Banks to pledge Fifth Federal Reserve Bank's agent representative of Japan in Manchukuo for additional reserve notes. The purpose is to maintain a greater supply of gold in the hands of Federal Reserve Banks for whatever use demand requires.

PREMIER OF MANCHUKUO REPORTED KILLED BY BOMB

Gen. Muto of Japan Injured at Changchun Rail Station, It Is Said in Shanghai.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 21.—There were persistent reports here today that Chang Hsiang-han, Premier of Manchukuo, had been killed in a bombing at the Changchun railway station and that Gen. Muto, supreme representative of Japan in Manchukuo, had been seriously injured. It was impossible to verify the reports immediately because of the Japanese censorship.

CHICAGO POLICE AGAIN QUELL DEMONSTRATION BY JOBLESS Captain and Six Patrolmen Injured in Putting Down Disturbances at Relief Stations.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Police drove back a crowd of demonstrators who attempted to invade an unemployment relief station on the northwest side yesterday. The rioters were repulsed only after a police captain, six policemen, and two civilians were injured, and several others beaten.

The melee started from a demonstration by several hundred persons against distribution of food to the unemployed. "We want cash, not rotten food," said signs carried by the crowd.

The major trouble, near Garfield Park, was quelled after 20 minutes of fighting, but police had a busy afternoon elsewhere. Three other demonstrations occurred on the north and west sides, but soon were quelled.

WOMAN, 82, LIVING IN DUMP, DECLARED NEIR TO ESTATE

San Diego Shanty Dweller to Get Property Valued at Several Thousand.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Sena M. Ryan, 82 years old, who has been living in a shanty in the center of the San Diego public dump, has been declared the legal heir to an estate valued at several thousand dollars.

Three daughters and a son who would have inherited the estate if Mrs. Ryan had not been found had filed depositions saying she had been missing many years and was thought to be dead.

The estate, originally appraised at $17,000, was left by Mrs. Ryan's son, George F. Thompson, Los Angeles banker who died Nov. 13, 1921. Superior Judge Charles S. Crall entered an order awarding her what was left of the inheritance after deducting $8500 for expenses of administration.

CANADIAN OFFICER SAVED BY PRISONER

Injured Indian Crawls for Aid After Plane Crash at 40 Below Zero.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—Corporal Graves of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was sent into the wilderness near Bay Trail, Sask., to get "Buster" Whiteway, half-breed Indian wanted for robbery.

The corporal got his man and to save the expense of transporting him to Saskatchewan, obtained authority to take Whiteway to the Pas, Man., by airplane. Jan. 13 Graves and his prisoner took off in a plane piloted by William Spence. At Moose Lake the plane ran into a blizzard and the pilot decided to land. One wing hit trees, the plane turned over.

Whiteway was flung against an emergency door and his ankle was broken. It was 40 degrees below zero. Crawling over the ice, Whiteway found that Spence was dead and the corporal and two other passengers were unconscious.

Painfully dragging the men out of the wreck, the prisoner laid them on sleds and covered them, and spread quilts over them to keep them from freezing to death. Then he crawled to an Indian settlement on the shore of Moose Lake and there obtained the assistance which saved the life of Graves and the two other passengers—a prospector named Robertson and a mechanic named Cook.

Another plane was sent out Jan. 14 to take the injured men to the Pas.

Reports of the rescue reached here yesterday.

1000 FARMERS AT COURTHOUSE PREVENT FORECLOSURE SALE

Minnesota Man Had Lived on Place 57 Years—Sheriff Postpones Action.

By the Associated Press.

WILLMAR, Minn., Jan. 21.—A large group of farmers today prevented a foreclosure sale of the farm on which Soren Hanson has lived for 57 years. The farmers, estimated to number 1000, gathered at the county courthouse, and Sheriff Paul E. Anderson postponed the sale for two weeks.

Emil Arvas of Willmar, designated by the insurance company holding the mortgage to put in a bid, was crowded so by throngs in the sheriff's office that he was unable to leave the room to advance to the outside.

Forty-five minutes after the time set for the sale, he left the office and the crowd dispersed following announcement of the postponement.

In 1887, when Hanson paid his first taxes, he paid $4.20 on this farm, it was said. Last year his taxes amounted to $112. The mortgage, placed by Hanson in 1925, was for $2772.

GIVES UP TRYING FOR CONCILIATION, TOKIO'S LAST NOTE IS NOT ACCEPTABLE

Committee of Nineteen Rejects Japan's Qualified Acceptance of Compromise Offer Barring U. S. and Russia.

TOKIO MAKES FOUR MAIN OBJECTIONS

Challenges Mention of Competence of League Covenant, Kellogg-Briand Treaty, the Nine-Power Pact and Lytton Report.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Jan. 21.—The League of Nations Committee of Nineteen today rejected as unacceptable Japan's reply to its proposal for conciliation of the Chinese-Japanese dispute and agreed to proceed immediately with a report and recommendations, regardless of Japan's views.

Conciliation, the committee agreed, no longer is possible.

The members authorized preparation of a report as provided in the League covenant, and fixed a meeting for Monday morning for the first general discussion of the report.

Japan's Four Main Objections.

It was understood that Japan's reply maintained opposition to these four points in the committee's proposals:

First, mention of the competence of the League covenant, the Kellogg-Briand pact and the Nine-Power treaty.

Second, acceptance of Chapter 9 of the Lytton report as a basis for conciliation.

Third, the invitation to the United States and Russia to participate in the process of conciliation.

Fourth, the obligation of non-recognition of the State of Manchukuo.

Chapter 9 of the Lytton report presents a series of suggestions for settlement of the dispute. It proposes a new treaty between China and Japan establishing the rights and responsibilities of both countries in Manchuria, and the creation of a medium for the settlement of minor disputes which may arise.

It proposes that the Government of Manchuria should be modified in such a way as to secure a large measure of autonomy, the internal order to be protected by local police, and external aggression to be provided against by the withdrawal of all armed forces other than the police and by the conclusion of a treaty of non-aggression between the interested countries.

It proposes also a new commercial treaty between China and Japan, and it suggests that while political instability continues in China some form of international co-operation in the internal reconstruction of China be adopted.

Door Not Entirely Closed.

The committee did not close the door entirely against conciliation if any possibility of a friendly settlement should develop subsequently, thereby providing for any change in Japan's attitude.

Suggestions for the projected report drafted by the League secretariat were circulated to permit study of the question before Monday's debate.

Nether Japan nor China will have any voice in shaping the report or in its adoption by the assembly. It was predicted that preparation of the report probably would cause much controversy and extended deliberations.

Preparation of the report is authorized by Article 19 of the League of Nations covenant, which provides that when members of the League become involved in any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, and when that dispute is not submitted to arbitration, each side shall submit to the League Council.

ROOSEVELT VISITS POWER PLANT AT MUSCLE SHOALS

President-Elect Greeted by Cheering Crowds at Sheffield and Florence, Ala., on Inspection Trip.

SAYS HE IS PLEASED WITH THE PROJECT

Praises Army for Upkeep—Goes Back to Train to Resume His Journey to Warm Springs, Ga.

By the Associated Press.

Govs. McAlister of Tennessee and Miller of Alabama headed the reception committee which met Roosevelt. Four army airplanes escorted the train into the city.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, Republican Independent, who will press again his legislation for Government control and operation of Muscle Shoals at the next session, was at the side of Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt told a crowd here: "I am confident Congress will work with me and we can get something practical done to put 'Muscle Shoals back on the map.' Significance was attached to his statement that 'we are going to treat Muscle Shoals from a national standpoint.'"

Senator Norris was introduced by Roosevelt to the crowd at the station as "the father of Muscle Shoals."

Crowds Cheer at Florence. Roosevelt visited Florence on the other side of the Tennessee River and again was welcomed by cheering crowds.

"I hope to come back again and then find the great power possibilities of this valley being used to the utmost," he said in a short talk. "I am interested in all possibilities and size of this project. It is a nation-wide project and will be treated as such."

"I am greatly impressed by the interest in which the army is keeping the project in proper preparedness. The army is to be congratulated."

The party motored through the unused buildings of the nitrate plant. Roosevelt was informed that the whole tremendous scheme—idle since the war days when it was constructed for manufacture of nitrate for munitions—could be put in operation again on an hour's notice.

Mr. Roosevelt returned to his special train here and departed shortly after noon for Montgomery, where he will dine tonight with Gov. McAlister of Alabama. Stops were planned at Decatur and Birmingham for platform appearances.

The President-elect will reach Warm Springs, Ga., tomorrow morning for a two weeks' rest.

Norris to Delay Action. "I will wait until Mr. Roosevelt is in the White House before attempting to get congressional action again on this issue," Norris said.

His bill for establishment of a Federal corporation to sell the surplus power of the project to states and cities has been vetoed by both Presidents Hoover and Coolidge.

SENATE VOTES TO PUT LIMIT ON BRANCH BANKING

Ballot 52 to 17 Permitting Practice in About 9
States Where It Is Permitted
Among State Banks.

ADVOCATES WOULD MAKE CONCESSIONS

Thomas of Oklahoma and Glass, Sponsor of Bill, in Heated Argument—Nye Opposes Branches.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Drastic revision of the Glass banking bill was voted today by the Senate in approving a compromise amendment on branch banking limiting this practice to about nine states where it is permitted among State institutions.

The vote ended the spirited fight by a small group of Democratic Liberals against the clause permitting branch banking in all states regardless of State laws prohibiting it.

However, other contests were in the offing and the ultimate fate of the bill this session was in doubt. The vote for the compromise was 52 to 17.

Advocates of the banking bill showed a willingness to make some concessions on the controversial branch banking section around which the filibuster has centered.

Yesterday's Debate. Thomas yesterday got into an argument with Glass on the floor when he asked the Virginian if he, while Secretary of the Treasury, had anything to do with an alleged Federal Reserve Board attempt to defeat the currency in May, 1920.

"The Senator's history is totally in error," Glass replied. "I qualified as a Senator in February, 1920, so I couldn't have had anything to do with calling a meeting of the Federal Reserve Board about which there has been so much misinformation."

Thomas said he had been advised unofficially that if the bill passed the Senate, House leaders would retain it on the Speaker's desk and attempt to pass it just before March 4, without referring it to the committee.

He asked Glass if he had heard the report that Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee would refuse to call a meeting of his group to consider the bill. Glass said he knew nothing about it.

Nye Opposes Branch Banks. Senator Nye (Rep., North Dakota), opposing the branch bank clause, said some day "Uncle Sam is going to wake up to the fact that the banking monopoly have unloaded on him millions of dollars of what many people will consider worthless securities."

He contended that in setting up a regional agricultural credit corporation in the Northwest recently, the Northwestern chain banks "dictate the appointment of the men on applications" of farmers for loans, in 80 per cent of the cases.

Senator Wheeler (Dem., Montana), also assailed the branch banking clause and criticized leaders on both sides for "failing to carry forth constructive legislation to bring us out of the depression."

"The Congress of the United States offers one of the most pitiable spectacles ever witnessed," he asserted.

JAPANESE MAKE THIRD AIR ATTACK ON CHINESE BASE

Purpose of Bombing in Jehol Province Is to Prevent Raids on Three Railroads in Manchuria.

By the Associated Press.

TUNGCHIAO, Manchuria, Jan. 21.—For the third time this week, Japanese airplanes raided and bombed Chinese troop concentrations today in the Jehol province of Jehol Province. The planes inflicted heavy punishment, it was reported at this Japanese military base.

Japanese said air raids into the Chinese administrative state were to forestall raids on three railroads centering at this point and to prevent an attack on this city.

Japanese planes bombed Kaili, the northeastern entrance to the Yellow Sea coast, and in the North China province of Jehol, last Sunday and Monday. About 3,000 Chinese troops were reported concentrating there.

These Chinese forces included the "Red Spears" and "Big Swords," said by Japanese to be stragglers from the defeated forces of Gen. Su Ping-wen and Ma Chanshan, who were routed in North-west Manchuria. The Chinese entered into Northern Jehol, it was said, to aid in defense of that province against the Japanese.

Japanese leaders think "internal disorders" and bombings are breaking up the Chinese concentrations. The Committee of Nineteen's resolution, on which the original conciliation offer was based, and to which Japan objected, called for a large conciliation board of the Japanese activities in Manchuria.

On receipt of Japan's detailed objections, the Committee of Nineteen then asked Japan whether it would abandon its other objections if the United States and Russia were not invited to participate in the negotiations. It was Japan's reply to this question that was received today.

In its first reply to the conciliation proposal Japan objected to the committee's resolution declaring Japan's activities in Manchuria were not legitimate self-defense and that the Manchurians did not support the Manchukuo Government.

Other objections which Japan advanced and which the committee was unwilling to accept, were that the resolution embodying the conciliation formula should not mention the question of recognition of the Japanese-sponsored State of Manchukuo; that it should provide for a small conciliation body of five or seven members instead of a larger one; and that it should provide for a legislative council in the Manchukuo, that it should provide for a small conciliation body of five or seven members instead of a larger one; and that it should provide for a legislative council in the Manchukuo.

Statement by Chinese. The Chinese, declared in a statement, declared the principle of non-recognition and non-continuation of Manchukuo was indispensable to any basis of conciliation. The Chinese government, they said, had accepted modifications of the original proposals, Dr. W. W. Yen, head of the Chinese delegation, said his colleagues also supported the proposal to invite the United States and Russia to participate in settlement negotiations.

The conciliating body must have a supervisory function in the Chinese-Japanese negotiations, the Chinese statement said, adding, "If China has now to be asked to negotiate direct with Japan after 16 months of waiting and suffering, then the cannot but feel that she has been betrayed in her scrupulous adherence to a policy of patience and conciliation."

KENTUCKY HOME LIFE CO.
RECEIVERSHIP DISSOLVED
Order Restraining Insurance Firm From Doing Business Is Set Aside.

By the Associated Press.
FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 21.—The temporary receivership of the Kentucky Home Life Insurance Co. was dissolved last night, and the court order restraining it from doing business was set aside without prejudice.

The order was issued by Circuit Judge H. Church Ford after attorneys for the State Insurance Department and the company reached an agreement on differences which led to appointment of the temporary receivers.

Former United States Senator James Reed, a director of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., represented that company at conferences which preceded the court session. The Kentucky Home Life Insurance Co. of Louisville is a subsidiary of the Missouri State Life stock.

30 MEXICANS KILLED IN EXPLOSION AND FIRE

Gasoline in Auto Ignited, Flames Spread to Dynamite Store, in Morelia.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 21.—Latest advices received here today were that at least 30 persons were killed yesterday in an explosion and fire in Morelia, about 125 miles north-west of Mexico City.

The disaster was caused by a chauffeur's lighting a lamp while filling the gasoline tank of his car. The gasoline ignited and the fire quickly spread to a nearby storehouse containing 60 boxes of dynamite. The building and all machinery housed in it were destroyed. Fire spread to nearby houses, at least 20 of which were burned.

The Governor of the State, other high officials and residents in the foreign colony witnessed the disaster and participated in relief activities.

EX-CONVICT SHOT BY GANGSTER AS HE SITS AT PHONE

Oliver Holland Wounded
Three Times by Leo
Casey After Evening of Beer Drinking in Flat.

VICTIM REFUSES TO TALK TO POLICE

Occupant of Dwelling Wrests Pistol From Attacker and Fires at Him as He Flees.

By the Associated Press.
OLIVER HOLLAND, ex-convict, was shot three times last night in a flat at 3104 North Market street by a man whom he had spent the evening drinking beer.

Wounded in the face, chest and right arm, Holland was taken to St. Louis Hospital, where he refused to talk to police. He is expected to recover.

From James L. Gough, chauffeur, who, with his wife, occupied the three-room flat, police learned details of the shooting. Gough told them Casey had left several times during the evening, returning at about 11 o'clock.

His wife walked straight back to the "kitchen," police quoted Gough as saying, "and fired three shots at Holland, who was using the telephone. Holland fell after the first shot, and when he got to the front room I fired one shot at him, and missed."

Gough turned over to police a .38-gauge revolver from which four shots had been fired. There was a bullet hole in the wall beside the telephone, two more in the floor and one in the wall above the door. His wife was in the room when the shooting took place.

The bullet which struck Holland in the chest was deflected by a rib and caused no serious injury. The one which hit his face was deflected by the jawbone, and likewise did no great damage. The wound in his arm was regarded as the most serious.

Victim Now Under Bond. At the hospital Holland pretended not to hear questions put to him by police. When they handed the bullet to him, he wrote on slips of paper, he made no response. He is 37 years old, served a six-year sentence for a series of robberies in 1920 and was under bond for a robbery charge. With another man he was caught breaking into a safe at Hibernian Hall last April 26.

Police are searching for Casey, who has been arrested more than 100 times for questioning. He served a one-year term at Leavenworth penitentiary for a liquor law violation, and in 1921 was sentenced to a year in the Missouri State Penitentiary for a robbery charge. The murder charge was nolle prossed when a defendant was acquitted by a jury.

LOCKPORT-JOLIET LINK OPENED

System Expected to Be Completed to Mississippi River by March 1.

By the Associated Press.
JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 21.—The Lockport-Joliet link of the Illinois waterway was completed yesterday when water was turned into the Brandon locks in the Des Plaines River south of Joliet. United States engineers predicted the waterway would be completed from Chicago and the Mississippi River at Graton on March 1.

For several days, a lake two miles long and one mile wide has been forming between Joliet and Brandon locks. Completion of the waterway will flood the locks, making barge traffic possible from Lockport south to Joliet. The Chicago-Lockport link was finished some time ago.

INDEPENDENT OIL CO. SUES BARNSDALL FOR $240,000

St. Louis Firm Alleges Refining Concern Violated Contract for Sale of Gasoline.

Suit for $240,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by the Independent Oil Co. of St. Louis against Barnsdall Refineries, Inc., alleging breach of contract.
The petition states that on Aug.
1, 1930, the two companies entered into a contract whereby the Barnsdall company was to deliver to the plaintiff 300 to 400 tank cars of regular gasoline and 60 to 90 cars of ethyl gasoline each year for five years at 5 1/2 cents under posted price at service stations. It is alleged the defendant has violated the contract by refusing to make marginal allowances specified in the agreement, thereby forcing the Independent Oil Co. to buy on the open market at a higher price.
Future damages within the period of the contract was added to the present loss, will bring the total to the amount sued for, the suit sets forth.

SUIT TO ENJOIN CONVERSION OF WHITE TO NEGRO SCHOOL

Hearing Set for Thursday on Plea to Block Change at Glasgow School.

Nine citizens sued in Circuit Court today to enjoin the converting of Glasgow School, 3415 North Garrison avenue, into a school for Negroes. Judge Calhoun issued an order to show cause, returnable next Thursday.
The change was planned for this month, after a delay of several months to investigate protests.
Many patrons attended the Board of Education meeting last week, but a speaker was not permitted to speak. The board has voted to re-name the school in honor of Paul Lawrence Dunbar, Negro poet.

White children continued to outnumber Negro children in the district, the petition stated. It said the school was outside the Negro district, and suggested that Franklin Avenue, "between and Franklin schools, closed for two years, was better situated for a Negro school.

Three Times by Leo
Casey After Evening of

Oliver Holland, ex-convict, was shot three times last night in a flat on 304 North Market street by Leo Casey, former Hogan gangster, with whom he had spent the evening drinking beer.

Wounded in the face, chest and right arm, Holland was taken to City Hospital, where he refused to talk to police. He is expected to recover.

From James L. Gough, chauffeur, who with his wife, occupies the three-room flat, police learned details of the shooting. Gough told them Casey had left several times during the evening, returning the last time about 11 o'clock.

He walked straight back to the kitchen," police quoted Gough as saying, "and fired three shots at Holland, who was using the telephone. Holland fell after the first shot, and Casey fired two more while he was on the floor.

"I grabbed a bottle and hit Casey over the head with it, and in the struggle I got his gun. He started to run then, and when he got to the front room I fired one shot at him, but missed."

Gough turned over to police a .38-caliber revolver with which four shots had been fired. There was a bullet hole in the wall beside the telephone, two more in the floor and one in the wall of the front room. Gough and his wife were held at the Dayton Street Police Station. Police reported finding 34 quarts of beer in the flat.

The bullet which struck Holland in the head hit the chest and was deflected by ribs and caused no serious injury. The one which hit his leg was deflected by the jawbone, and likewise did no great damage.
The wound in his arm was regarded as the most serious.

ed a paper, he made no response. He is 27 years old, served a six-year penitentiary term for a series of robberies in 1920 and is under bond now on a robbery charge.

Police are searching for Casey, who they have arrested more than once. He is a Negro, 35 years old, born in a rooming house on Leavenworth avenue, and in 1921 was indicted for the murder of Morris Pilirow, Negro taxi driver.

Charge was nolle prossed when a defendant was acquitted by a jury.

MEDICAL RESEARCH WORKER FROM ST. CHARLES DIES

Body of John H. Stumberg Found in Bath at Princeton, N. J.

John H. Stumberg of St. Charles died suddenly last night at Princeton, N. J., where he was engaged in medical research for Rockefeller Institute. He was 27 years old.

The body was found in a bathtub in Stumberg's apartment. He was dressed in a bathrobe and was found by a maid who reported the death to the police.

Stumberg was a son of Dr. B. K.
Stumberg, physician at Lindenwood College, St. Charles. He was graduated from Washington University and had received a degree from Johns Hopkins University. His research in physiological diseases resulted in his receiving Rockefeller fellowship.

Surviving are his parents, Mr.
and Mrs. Kurt and Kriet Stumberg, residents at the University of Missouri, and two sisters, Frances and Marion. The funeral will be held at St. Charles at a time to be announced.

DICKMANN-FOR-MAYOR CLUB GETS UNDER WAY

Half of Democratic City Committeemen Attend Meeting Called by Igoo.

Formation of a Dickmann-for-Mayor Club, to support the candidacy of Bernard F. Dickmann, Democrat, was started at a meeting of several hundred men and women at Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

The meeting was called by William
L. Igoo, party leader, who presided.
A nomination committee to propose officers is to be appointed by Igoo. The group will meet again next Friday night in the small hall in the Odeon Building.

At least half of the 56 members of the Democratic City Committee attended yesterday's session. Among committee members reported present were Dewey S. Godfrey, chairman, Seventeenth Ward; Harry J.
Cantwell, treasurer, Twenty-fifth Ward; Miss Nell Meehan, vice-chairman, Twentieth Ward; Mrs.
Mada Wood, secretary, Eighth Ward; Joseph J. Mestres, former chairman, Seventh Ward; Justice of the Peace Jimmy Miller, Fourth Ward; and Joseph F. Hannauer,
City Treasurer, Menne and Circuit Judge O'Malley.

Letters endorsing Dickmann's candidacy were read. Among the writers were: Former Gov. Frederick D. Gardner, former Gov. Elliott
W. Major, Fred G. Zeigler, I. H.
Lionberger and J. Lionberger Davis.

Talks in behalf of Dickmann were made by Igoo, Fred L. English, Thomas L. Anderson, Marion C.
Earley, R. T. Brownrigg and J. Wesley McAfee. Some of these men were active in support of Russett last year.

Many of Dickmann's backers opposed Dearmond in that campaign.
Dickmann also spoke.

The Democratic organization of St. Louis has endorsed Dickmann's candidacy last night with the approval of Deputy Sheriff John English, committee man from the ward. L. J. Gualdoni of the Democratic State Committee, a leader of the ward, has not announced his approval of any mayorality candidate.

The women's precinct organization of the Nineteenth Ward indorsed Dickmann's candidacy last night and proposed John J. Keegan, former committeeman from the ward and professional bondsman, for Alderman. The Tenth Ward Democratic organization, the Twenty-sixth Ward Democratic Club and the Baden Democratic Club have also endorsed Dickmann. A non-partisan Dickmann-for-Mayor Club and a women's Dickmann-for-Mayor club were also formed in the Fifteenth Ward.

Campaign headquarters for Dick-mann have been opened at 228 Paul Brown building. Dickmann addressed ward meetings in the Tenth, Fifteenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-third wards last night. Party organizations in nine wards have announced approval of his candidacy so far.

Other Democratic mayoralty candidates are Jerome F. Duggan and O. H. Brooks Jr.
H. P. Wiese of 4254 Washington boulevard, who has been an auditor for the Internal Revenue Bureau, has announced he would run for the Republican nomination for Twenty-third Ward Alderman. About 100 business men of the ward have signed a petition asking him to run. He will oppose Alderman Rudolph H. Brock, incumbent, and James N. McKelvey, Republican committeeman from the ward.

MAN HELD IN SHREVEPORT, LA., FOR ST. LOUIS MAIL ROBBERY

A. L. McCarty Surrenders to Police in Theft of Pouch from Paul Brown Building.

Charges have been filed at Shreveport, La., against Alvin Lee
McCarty, 29 years old, of Houston, Tex., for the theft Dec. 4 of a mail pouch from the Paul Brown Building.

McCarty walked into a Shreveport police station Wednesday and surrendered. He was a fugitive from justice. He said his conscience had troubled him, and he believed Federal agents were searching for him in the mail pouch theft. He signed a waiver, stating that he was ready to return to St. Louis.

The robbery was discovered when Robert Pitt, an itinerant, told a policeman he had seen four men open several hundred letters in a vacant building at 1406 Pine street. Investigation disclosed that the men apparently searched for cash in the mail, and found none. Checks and money orders in the envelopes were not taken. How the men obtained possession of the mail was not determined.

ALLEGED FORTUNE TELLER ARRESTED BY POLICEMEN

Mrs. Myrtle Rupp Said to Have Made Prediction by "Vibration Method."

A woman who said she was Mrs.
Myrtle Rupp, 46 years old, was arrested at her home, 4117 Lindell boulevard, yesterday afternoon by two policemen, one of whom reported Mrs. Rupp had told her fortune by the "vibration" method.

The policeman, Mrs. Hazel Haggerty, said she was told to extend her hands, palms up, and that Mrs. Rupp placed her palms over them to catch the "vibrations." Information the policeman said she received was that she had a stomach ailment which would result in an operation, that she would change her occupation and go on a long trip over the world.

She said she had paid $2 for the information. Mrs.
Rupp was ordered to appear in Police Court Feb. 3, on a fortune-telling charge.

Police also reported a complaint by a man who said his daughter was "going crazy" because a fortune teller repeatedly told her she was about to die.

second lion, which still lay on the ground of earth regarding the huntman quizzically. A half hour of din failed to make it move or even to blink. "Indian Joe" finally cut down a sapling, about 15 feet long, and stripped it of branches.
Creeping toward the animal he dropped it gently in the ribs. This aroused the animal to a sudden restraint. It leaped to its feet and dashed toward Joe. At its first step the rifles of Wright, Cluff, young Wright and Bennett cracked.
The lion fell dead.

Thus it was that Wright's second lion hunt had almost as melancholy an ending as his first, in which two young lionesses were killed last October by interlopers after Wright had released them on a Mississippi River island in the hope of hunting them down.

Keegan's diligence was rewarded yesterday afternoon as he was driving along Grand boulevard at Washington. There stood Brennan.
Keegan sprang from his car and directed Brennan to accompany him to the Sheriff's office. Brennan analogized to Keegan for not appearing when the case was called, explaining he had received no notice of the setting of his case for trial. Keegan will get a release from the bond forfeiture and the charge against Brennan will be reinstated.

STORY OF ESKIMOS IN TALKIE

Movie Being Filmed at Teller, Alaska.

TELLER, Alaska, Jan. 21.—Teller has visions of becoming the Hollywood of the Far North. A company numbering 100, with an Alaskan born white Eskimo for the leading man, is completing the filming of a story which depicts the race as it lived prior to the coming of the white man.

At the outset an attempt was made to record the sound in En-GLISH but it was abandoned and the dialogue will all be in Eskimo with translations made, possibly, into English and French later.

Cut in Missionary Budget.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The executive committee of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions yesterday approved a $2,800,000 budget for the fiscal year 1933-34. Dr.
E. Graham Wilson, general secretary, said the figure was a 21 per cent reduction from the current year.

GETS LIFE TERM UNDER HABITUAL CRIMINAL ACT

Richard Krebs, Once Known as "Kid Glove Highwayman" Sentenced for $32 Holdup.

HIS WIFE MAKES SCENE IN COURT

Prisoner Was First Sentenced to Penitentiary at 19 When Student at Night School.

Richard Krebs, who became known in 1921 when he was 19 years old, as the "kid glove highwayman," was convicted of robbery with a deadly weapon and sentenced to life imprisonment as a habitual criminal by a jury in Judge Landwehr's court yesterday after 15 minutes' deliberation.

The maximum punishment is mandatory under the habitual criminal act. As the verdict was read Krebs' wife, sitting with friends in the front row, screamed and attempted to throw her arms about him. She was restrained, and he was led from the courtroom.

Krebs was charged with participation in the robbery of the Sadio-Faber Motor Co., 4933 Natural Bridge avenue, on the night of last July 28, when a watchman was tied to a chair, $26 was taken from a cash drawer and $8 from a salesman's pocket, and a charge of assault in the robbery is sought by police.

In 1921, when Krebs was a night school student at Central High School, he was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment on two charges of robbery and a charge of assault.
He had confessed five holdups, an attempted payroll robbery, and the theft of three automobiles in six weeks. He was arrested by a traffic policeman when he fled from a stolen coupe after shooting and slightly wounding a Detective Sergeant who had jumped on the running board.

Krebs was identified in court yesterday by Harry W. Langley, automobile salesman, who said Krebs was the man who met him at the door when he entered the garage during the holdup. The watchman, Charles Sherrard, was unable to identify Krebs.

Taking the stand briefly in his own defense, Krebs made a general denial of the charge. He was arrested there, however, after the arrest, when a watchman interrupted an attempt to break into the caddy house on the Ruth Park golf course in University City. Krebs was found lying under the porch, and an automobile taken in the holdup company holdup was hidden in weeds near by. A second man was arrested a few minutes later on North and South road.

MAN SENTENCED TO 10 YEARS ON GUILTY PLEA OF ROBBERY

Albert Sterba Held Up Dry Goods Store at 3330 Grand and Told $35.

Albert Sterba, 33 years old, was sentenced to 10 years in the new intermediate prison at Alton Farms yesterday on a charge of robbery with a deadly weapon. He pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge Eder.
Sterba, who gave his address as 3772 Lee avenue, admitted holding up Samuel Bernstein, proprietor of a dry goods store at 3330 North Grand boulevard, last July 7. The loot was $35.

APPOINTED POLICE SERGEANT

Patrolman McNamara Caught Man Indicted in Auto Death.

Patrolman John McNamara of the police motorcycle squad was promoted to the rank of Sergeant yesterday.

Police Commissioners considered the records of several patrolmen whom their superiors, but chase McNamara, Chief Clerk said, because of consistently good police work during 14 years. McNamara's investigation led to the arrest of Robert Wallis, who has been indicted for manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Anna Slovic, killed by an automobile Dec. 28. McNamara, 39 years old, lives at 5422 Beacon avenue.

mentia. He was unmarried.

Indicted for Killing.

By the Associated Press.
URBANA, Ill., Jan. 21.—Roy A.
Norman, ill and morose, contractor, was held in jail here yesterday on $20,000 bond as the result of an indictment by the county grand jury for killing John Sprinkle last October. At the instant into the death, testimony indicated Sprinkle was shot while attempting to steal gasoline. The coroner's jury obvolved Norman of blame.

9 BILLS TO REPEAL STREET PROJECTS SIGNED BY MAYOR

Ordinances Killing Widening or Opening Plans Go in Effect at Once, Due to Emergency Clause.

MEASURES HELD BACK BY BOARD

Vote of Municipal Assembly Due to Opposition to Benefit Taxes Involved in Improvements.

Mayor Miller signed nine ordinances to repeal street widening and opening plans today. They became effective at once, having emergency clauses.

The bills were passed by the Board of Aldermen yesterday under suspension of the rules, having been approved by the Streets Commission last Wednesday. The vote was unanimous. Four other repeals approved by the committee were held by the board for further consideration.

Improvements repealed are: St. Louis avenue, Grand to Goodfellow, widening from 60 to 80 feet. Grand boulevard, Lawton to Magnolia, widening from 80 to 100 feet. Clark avenue, Eighteenth to Compton and Market, widening and proposed viaduct over Union Station tracks. Forest Park avenue, extension from Grand to Compton and Market. Arsenal street, Kingshighway to Fifty-ninth, widening. Thomas street, opening, Leonard to Easton. Theresa avenue, widening, Market to Bell. Bent avenue, widening, Parker to Pauline.

Three Plans Deferred. Improvements on which final action was deferred, although the Streets Commission reported favorably on repealing, are: Opening of the McCausland-Manhattan-Wellington boulevard, Manchester to Lexington; widening of Canterbury avenue, McCausland to city limits; widening of Vandeventer avenue, Aldine to Kennerly. Property owners asked that these be delayed in order to present petitions in favor of the improvements.

The thirteenth repealer approved by the committee last Wednesday was not reported to the board yesterday. No explanation of the omission was made. That bill is to repeal the widening of Maury avenue in the status of the islands is certain to the already dangerous disquietude of the Far East. It arises from bad motives being the scheme of sectional economic interests within the United States, and not the dictate of sound national policy.

It offers eventual independence to the Philippines on grossly unfair conditions, cutting off their livelihood before they can achieve real freedom. Finally, it takes away from the American Government its power in the islands, yet leaves with America the responsibility of safeguarding them against foreign aggression.

The premature nature of the bill is made plain by the attitude of the Filipinos themselves. While their so-called independence mission at Washington favors the independence of the Philippines at Manila shows that body to be opposed to it. Responsible leaders in the islands are aware of the grave dangers in this hasty and chaotic legislation.

Fortunately a considerable period, two years certainly, must elapse before the issue is settled. Meantime, it is to be hoped that either the Filipinos themselves will show greater wisdom than our Congress, or else the situation in the Orient will be sufficiently stabilized to permit a premature experiment in self-government. On the other hand, the uncertainty that must obtain for two or three years to come, and the anomalous conditions that will be the result thereafter, are certain to retard economic development of the islands.

ABOUT OUR COLONELS.

From the New York Times.

COLONELS in partibus flourish on the staffs of the Governors of Kentucky and Oklahoma. Gov. Park of Missouri has stuck to native valor and pugnacity. His staff of 56 Colonels makes the gorgeous East look drab. They wear regulation army full dress with the addition of a red star on each sleeve. The great seal of the United States is on the belt-buckle. On the double row of gold buttons on the coat and on the cuffs is the great seal of Missouri. This splendor must not blind us to the economic value of these glittering Colonels. The Kansas City Star says that the uniforms "require one and five-eighths miles of gold braid, 100 golden buttons and 250 yards of cloth. The words used 270 pounds of metal; and 90 persons found employment in making up the uniforms. Each uniform cost $50.70 compared to $175 four years ago."

The ornaments of beauty are cheap. Let Colonels flourish. Gov. Park must regret that he didn't appoint $600.

ECONOMIC LAWS STILL VALID.

From the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

IT WILL be fortunate if Congress in its plan for farm relief does not forget that there are certain economic laws which will operate regardless of whatever statutes may be enacted. They are as immutable as mechanical principles. Of these a commentator remarked not long ago: "We have more elaborate machinery now than Archimedes ever dreamed of, but the principle of the lever remains the same, and any engineer who proceeded on the idea that it is obsolete would be surprised."

If Congress ignores the economic laws it may discover that the surplus which will experience is not pleasant.

GEN. FRANK R. MCCOY BACK ON 'HOSS' DUTY

'Diplomat of the Army' to Command First Cavalry Division at Ft. Bliss.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—"The diplomat of the army" is returning to "hoss" duty.

Major-General Frank R. McCoy has received his orders to return to troop duty as commander of the First Cavalry Division at Fort Bliss, Texas.

It's a far cry from Manchuria to Texas, from Armenia to Fort Bliss, from Nicaragua to routine troop duty, but the General has demonstrated during the 35 years he has served in the army that such gaps can be bridged very easily.

Few officers in the army have had as varied and colorful a career as McCoy. Since the time as a 24-year-old Lieutenant who fell wounded in the charge on San Juan hill until just recently when he was in command of the 1st Cavalry Division, he has been in the thick of it.

A few persons in the register's office got a hurried glimpse of Norman as he dashed into the office pulling up the collar of his heavy fur coat about his ears. Shortly after the break arrived, Sir Mark and two ladies emerged and departed, but the newlywed had left by a back door and had motored away to a destination not divulged.

Norman did not go to business yesterday, remaining in the country where it was stated he was "slightly unwell."

Mrs. Norman, who is a daughter of Lady Alice Rymington with whom she lived in Caogang Square, spent yesterday at the county hall, she being a member of the London County Council, and visiting well-known clinics in which she takes great interest.

Since 1918, when "Avowals" appeared, Moore published all his work privately. Among the books so issued were "A Story Teller's Holiday," "Abelard and Heloise,"

MRS. JUDD'S STORY FOR PAPER CITED IN HALLORAN HEARING

Counsel for Lumber Man, Accused as Murder Accessory, Says She Wrote That She Had No Aid.

STARTS TO QUESTION WOMAN ONCE MORE

Reopens the Case, Declaring Confession Is 'Complete Refutation' of the Present Charges.

By the Associated Press. PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 21.—A published confession by Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd to two murders, in which she was quoted as saying she had no accomplice, was cited today by counsel for John J. Halloran, Phoenix lumberman, as a refutation of her court testimony that Halloran assisted in the disposal of the bodies of the women she killed.

After the state had rested in Halloran's preliminary hearing on a charge of being an accessory to the crime of murder, Frank O. Smith, counsel for Halloran, asked that the case be reopened so Mrs. Judd could be re-examined "upon evidence impeaching her story."

Smith told the court "we are preparing to prove that on Oct. 26, 27, 1931, Winnie Ruth Judd published in the Los Angeles Times of Los Angeles, Cal., her confession," and that the confession so published "is a complete refutation of all charges against John J. Halloran."

The newspaper, Smith said, published a confession with a facsimile signature of Mrs. Judd and a certificate from her attesting to its correctness.

"I first learned of this situation this morning at 6 o'clock," the attorney said. He quoted part of the confession appearing in the Los Angeles Times as follows:

"By Winnie Ruth Judd. This is my own story—the whole truth of the double tragedy which ended the lives of (Mrs.) Agnes Anne Leroy and (Miss) Hedvig Samuelson in Phoenix, Ariz., on Friday, Oct. 16, 1931. I have given it to my husband, William C. Judd, to dispose of as he sees fit and in order that the world may know the exact facts of the whole terrible affair."

"It has been charged that I had an accomplice either before, during or after the actual tragedy. This is not true."

"I alone shot and killed both women who were once my friends. I did it in self defense to save my own life—and for no other reason. I alone disposed of the bodies in a manner which I shall describe in more detail later. I had no help of any kind from anyone."

Case Ordered Reopened. The court said: "The court is disposed to know the whole truth about this matter, if it is possible. Therefore I will permit the reopening of the cross-examination of Mrs. Judd."

"In connection with your confession in the Los Angeles Times, Mrs. Judd, did you write and sign a certificate authorizing it?" Smith asked as he began to read it.

Mrs. Judd interrupted to say, "I can't say, as at that time I was delirious."

Smith showed Mrs. Judd the newspaper reproduction of her alleged confession and certification preceding her purported admission.

"Is this a fac simile of your signature?" Smith asked. "I was under a sedative and an anesthetic all the time I was in Los Angeles."

"Now is that a fac simile of your certificate and signature?" asked Smith. "Please answer yes or no." "I don't know," the witness replied.

Reading the opening paragraph of her purported first confession, Smith asked the witness if she made that statement.

"I did not make the statement, and whatever I said there, I was not on oath and I am on oath now that isn't even my language," she replied.

Old Proceedings Barred. The state must again prove that Mrs. Judd committed a crime when she killed Mrs. Le Roi, if the charge of being an accessory to the crime, now pending against Halloran is to be upheld.

This ruling of Superior Judge J. C. Niles resulted today in the summing of County Attorney Rens Jennings to argue that Mrs. Judd committed murder when she shot Mrs. Le Roi to death.

"If the act was one of self-defense (as Mrs. Judd says) the homicide was justifiable," ruled the court.

"If no crime was committed, Mr. Halloran can be accessory to no crime."

Mrs. Judd is sentenced to hang Feb. 17. She has not been tried for the murder of Miss Samuelson.

Judge Niles made his pronouncement after defense counsel moved for dismissal of the charge against Halloran. The court held Halloran was not bound by the state's previous proceedings against Mrs. Judd. The court took the dismissal motion under advisement until today.

Halloran is accused of aiding Mrs. Judd in disposing of Mrs. Leroy's body, advising her to conceal the slayings and aiding her to escape from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

ALLEGED EXTORTIONIST HELD

Accused of Threatening Realty Dealer at Pittsburgh, Kan.

By the Associated Press. PITTSBURGH, Kan., Jan. 21.—F. M. Daniels was arrested yesterday on complaint of his landlord, C. A. Miller, who was quoted by officers as saying the former had attempted to extort $500 or "1000 and the farm" from him at the point of a pistol.

Miller, a Pittsburgh real estate dealer, said Daniels produced a pistol and made his demand while on a drive to the country to look over a farm Daniels said he wished to rent. Police said Daniels told them he was despondent over financial affairs.

5 MEN ACCUSED IN CLEVELAND FIRE IN WHICH 13 DIED

Official Says Arson Gang Set Blazes From New York to St. Louis That Cost $2,000,000.

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 21.—Five men were accused of first degree murder yesterday in warrants based on the burning of the downtown Ellington apartment hotel in which 13 persons lost their lives last June 9.

The warrants were sworn to by Safety Director Frank J. Merrikk, who charged that the five men conspired to burn a barber supply shop on the ground floor of the building to collect $20,000 in insurance.

He said L. J. Kamins, 44-year-old former attorney now serving an arson sentence in Rockview penitentiary, Pennsylvania, was the "king pin" of the Ellington fire. Besides Kamins, the warrants named Sam Njeman and Paul Childs, Pittsburgh fire insurance adjusters; Ben Hirsch of Alliquippa, a suburb of Beaver Falls, Pa., and Ray I. Turk of Cleveland, manager of the American Beauty & Barber Supply Co.

"Our evidence," Merrikk said, "will disclose that this gang has been setting fires all over the Midwest and in the last 10 years has set fires from New York to St. Louis that caused $2,000,000 worth of damage."

"We charge that Turk hired a professional arson gang to set fire to his shop so that he could collect the insurance on it."

Merrikk said Hirsch was a "professional fire bug." Pittsburgh police were asked to arrest Childs and Njeman and Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania was requested to see that Kamins is not released without notice to the Cleveland police.

A search for Hirsch has been under way for several weeks, Merrikk said. He said Hirsch, who was told by his wife that he had left the city.

Merrikk said a painter whose name he did not disclose told him that Hirsch had been in the city. The goods were sent by truck to Pennsylvania after a large inventory of the store's contents had been taken," Merrikk continued.

He said Hirsch figured the investigation because of a note for $375 he gave to Turk.

Investigators agreed that the explosion, followed by fire which swept through the Ellington, apparently centered in the barber supply shop. The flames raced through hallways and shafts to the roof of the building. Many of the 200 hotel residents were injured in escaping and 13 men and women were trapped in the blazing structure.

SECOND MISTRIAL FOR WOMAN ACCUSED OF BUYING LOOT

Jury Again Disagrees in Case of Mrs. Zoe Hodges, Former Ball Band Singer.

For a second time, a jury was discharged today after failing to agree in the case of Mrs. Zoe Hodges, former professional singer of ball bands, who was on trial on a charge of receiving stolen property.

The jury, in Circuit Judge Bader's court, went out at 5 p. m. yesterday and deliberated until an early hour today. The foreman, Michael Kemper, 2000 Withnell avenue, said the ballots throughout that time were nine for conviction and three for acquittal. The first jury last June in Circuit Judge Beck's court, was 10 to 2 conviction.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Hennings, who directed the prosecution, announced Mrs. Hodges would be tried again. The charge is based on her alleged possession of a stolen fur coat. Two men under sentence for robbery testified they sold her the coat for $25, after telling her they had stolen it. The coat was taken in a burglary at a home at 6160 Washington avenue. Mrs. Hodges lives at 6427 Manchester avenue.

PRIVATE WATCHMAN BEATEN

S. B. Carter Attacked by Two Men He Put Out of Restaurant.

Two itinerants whom Samuel B. Carter, a private watchman, put out of a restaurant in the 4400 block of Manchester avenue last night, took his nightstick away from him and beat him on the head with it. He got to his feet as they fled and fired two shots, reporting to police he apparently hit one man.

Carter, who is 78 years old and lives at 5201 Maffitt avenue, was called to the aid of two customers in the restaurant, who said they were being bothered by the itinerants. As he pushed the men out on the sidewalk, one took his nightstick away and he struggled with them. They separated in flight. Carter said, and one stumbled when he fired.

Man, 67, Struck by Auto. Michael Brennell, 67 years old, 3335 Missouri avenue, suffered fractures of the skull and left leg when struck by an automobile at Gravel and California avenues yesterday afternoon. He is in serious condition at City Hospital. The driver was Ralph Wallace, a salesman, 3612 Tennessee avenue.

WOMAN IS ROBBED OF $2250 IN RINGS IN HER APARTMENT

Realty Dealer Opens Door for Two Holdup Men Whom She Mistakes for Relatives.

Miss Dorothy Kimlin, a real estate dealer, was held up in her apartment at 1340 McCausland avenue last night by two robbers who took three diamond rings valued at $2250 and $15 in cash.

Miss Kimlin, who owns the apartment building and operates her business from her home, was alone at 7 o'clock when the robbers, who knocked at her door, on the first floor. Thinking that her brother and sister-in-law were outside, she opened the door.

The robbers, one of whom had a revolver, backed her into the dining room and ordered her to "keep quiet." Both wore light overcoats and hats shell-rimmed glasses and held handkerchiefs to their faces. One immediately pulled down the window shades.

"We want your jewelry and money," one said, then noticing the rings on her fingers, took them off. Her purse was on the dining room table and the robbers took $15 from it.

The robbers asked for other money, which she insisted she did not have. "You don't want us to hurt you, do you?" one asked. She again said she had no more money and the robber suggested tying her to a chair.

When she begged them not to bind her, they put her in a small dressing room and pushed the dining room furniture against the door. They left the apartment immediately. Miss Kimlin threw a perfume bottle through a window opening on an inside hall but failed to attract the attention of other residents of the apartment. After some effort she was able to open the door and notified police.

Three years ago the real estate dealer was driving on Eads Bridge when two automobiles blocked her path. Five robbers from the two machines took four rings valued at $3500 from her. She resides with her mother.

Robber Breaks Glass, Pushes Woman from Car, Drives Off.

While Mrs. Fanny Meyer, wife of a grocer at 1826 North Taylor avenue, was sitting in her automobile at 4755 Easton avenue, a man pressed a revolver against the glass, reached in and unlocked the door, then edged into the car. Pushing her out the door on the opposite side, he took the wheel and drove away. Her purse with $2 in it and a basket of groceries were in the automobile, which has not been recovered.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED FOR CHICAGO STADIUM

Action Follows Filing of $1,750,000 Foreclosure Suit—Building Cost $5,000,000.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The Chicago Stadium Corporation is in equity receivership. A foreclosure suit for $1,750,000 has been filed against it, but the big sports building will continue to do business.

The corporation, which operates the huge building on Chicago's west side, built at a cost of about $5,000,000, was placed in receivership yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, following the filing of a suit by Charles E. Perry of Milwaukee. Perry holds $4000 worth of first mortgage bonds, which have been in default since Jan. 1, 1932.

Sidney N. Strotz, president of the Stadium Corporation, and Fred E. Hummel were appointed receivers. Strotz said the action would have no effect on scheduled and contemplated attractions. National League hockey, boxing, six day bicycle racing and other events will be held as usual.

GHNOULY GAINS DECISION OVER CECIL PAYNE IN 10-ROUND BOUT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 21.—The Ghnoully of St. Louis licked Cecil Payne, lightweight from Louisville, last night in 10 rounds by referee's decision. They weighed 135 pounds.

There were some who believed Ghnoully was just a flake, but he proved them wrong. He was a real fighter, and he won. He was a real fighter, and he won. He was a real fighter, and he won.

McKenna, 75 years old and married, had suffered from heart disease and dizziness. He was a real fighter, and he won. He was a real fighter, and he won. He was a real fighter, and he won.

Born and reared in St. Louis, McKenna was a real fighter. He was a real fighter, and he won. He was a real fighter, and he won. He was a real fighter, and he won.

Rivers' Stages at Other Cities. Pittsburgh, 11.9 feet, a rise of 0.3; Cincinnati, 19.8 feet, a rise of 0.3; Louisville, 19.3 feet, a rise of 0.3; Cairo, 25.6 feet, a fall of 0.6; Memphis, 20.9 feet, a fall of 0.6; Vicksburg, 38.3 feet, a rise of 0.6.

During the first three rounds, McKenna had little difficulty knocking down Santa's crude punching attempts, rushing inside his long arms and rocking him with heavy left and right hooks. He appeared headed for a certain knockout over the six-foot-tall Portuguese, who was quipped on by two bands, until McKenna's display of temper was mented by the crowd of 5000.

Mrs. Dueker in First Place in Tennis Ranking

Mrs. Virginia Baer Dueker was ranked No. 1 among the 1932 women singles players of the St. Louis tennis association, according to the official list given out today by the St. Louis Tennis Association. Mrs. Dueker, in addition to winning the district title, also won the municipal singles title and was finalist in the national public parks championship at Louisville.

The official rankings follow:

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Attorneys for Timothy J. Mara, sports promoter, announced today the receipt of a $100,000 check from Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion boxer, in settlement of an action brought against the fighter by the promoter.

It was urged upon me during the settlement negotiations, said J. Gainsburg, Mara's lawyer, "Tunney has not been working for the past few years."

Mara sued Tunney for $555,000 on the assertion that the fighter had agreed to pay him 10 per cent of the purse for the first fight with Jack Dempsey and 25 per cent of his earnings as champion if Mara obtained the original bout.

VENZKE SETS RECORD FOR PENN INDOOR TRACK

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Gene Venzke, world indoor mile record holder, today broke University of Pennsylvania's outdoor track and field record for the three-quarter mile when he flashed over the distance in three minutes, 52.5 seconds in the first winter hand-pumped track meet at the university. The record was 3:10, held by Earl Dean.

The Sheriff says it's wrong for Wright to make the people flee in fright from lions in Kentucky. Which indicates that Wright is wrong.

Let 'Er Rain!

Babe Ruth says he is all set for a rainy day and at the present moment he could write a rain-check for 400,000 bucks.

Babe says it costs him $15,000 a year to live in the manner to which he is accustomed. And there has been no reduction in the price of hot dogs.

Babe further avers that if he has drawn $500,000 from the Colonel he has earned it. Indicating that his earning capacity is equalled only by his eating capacity.

His point is well taken; but $500,000 a year is not chicken feed in any man's league, including the League of Nations.

Whose Turn Next?

THE Everett Marshall build-up having reached the customary "championship" climax, a "sensational" victory for London, wrestling fans here are now indulging in the indoor pastime of guessing the next victim.

Marshall's rise to a challenging position was accomplished by precisely the methods that prevailed in exploiting O'Shocker, Kampfer, McCreedy and other athletes who came here with indifferent reputations and were quickly inflated to near championship proportions through the medium or consecutive victories.

That the build-up plan will be followed out again there is no reason to doubt, although the name of John Pesek is now being brought to the front. Pesek will be seen here on Feb. 1. While his reputation needs no building up, a series of victories would be certain to revive interest in a "title" meeting between Pesek and London. That's all right with us. Any time John Pesek wrestles it's worth seeing. John can't disguise the fact that he's a real wrestler, even under modern wrestling conditions.

BOZEMAN GAINS THIRD VICTORY IN 3-CUSHIONS TITLE TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—J. N. Bozeman Jr. of Vallejo, Cal., today held the lead in the world three-cushion billiards championship tournament, but Clarence Jackson of Detroit had a chance of pulling up even.

Following the opening match of the day between Otto Reisel of Philadelphia and Frank Scoville of Buffalo, N. Y., Jackson, victorious in his two starts, was matched with Allen Hall of Chicago. Another victory for the veteran from Detroit would put him in a tie with Bozeman, who last night defeated Hall for his third in a row. In the night match Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., and Arthur Thurnbull of Chicago will meet.

Bozeman easily defeated Hall, scoring a 50-to-34 triumph in 43 innings. He had two runs of six, with Hall collecting four as his best, and led all the way.

In the afternoon tests, Tiff Denton of Kansas City and Augie Kleckhefer of Chicago, the defending champion, pulled up in the race. Denton had surprisingly little trouble in defeating Layton, 50 to 39, in 56 innings, getting a high run of six, to four for the Sedalia redhead.

The victory was his third in four matches and he finished the day in third place. The defeat was Layton's first in two games.

Kleckhefer was forced to make a sensational finish to defeat Scoville, 50 to 49, in 55 innings. The Buffalo shotmaker led, 20 to 9, in the fifteenth inning, but Kleckhefer got started and pulled up even and tied it at 25-all in the twenty-fifth. The score was tied eight times before the Chicago southpaw went out. His high run was five, while Scoville had a six.

The standing:

MISSOURI U. WRESTLER WINS MATCH DESPITE A FRACTURED ANKLE

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 21.—Johnny Beall, sophomore from Kansas City, who was the only member of the University of Missouri wrestling team to win his match in the dual meet with Iowa State College here last night, did so in spite of a fractured ankle. An X-ray examination today disclosed the break.

Beall, competing in the heavyweight division, suffered the injury during the first minute of his match with Cyclone of the Cyclone team. Time was called out as the Tiger grappler rolled off the mat in severe pain.

After a few minutes, however, Beall said he would be able to fight the bout, and piled up a time advantage of three minutes 55 seconds to give Missouri its lone three points. Iowa State previously had rolled up 21 points to win easily.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—The Philadelphia Athletics today announced the outright release of Catcher John Heving to the Toronto club of the International League. He joined the A's two seasons ago, coming from the Boston Red Sox by waiver.

John Misbehaved.

HOWEVER, there is some doubt attaching to Pesek's being given a major chance with London. That's because Pesek has somewhat lost the confidence of his wrestling brethren by electing to become a "lone wolf." Or rather he was forced to.

It was this way: John, a few years ago at Los Angeles, acted in a very unclubby manner in a match with Joe Stecher, then champion. In fact, it appears from news reports of the match, that John went so far as to try to throw Joe and actually succeeded in gaining two falls!

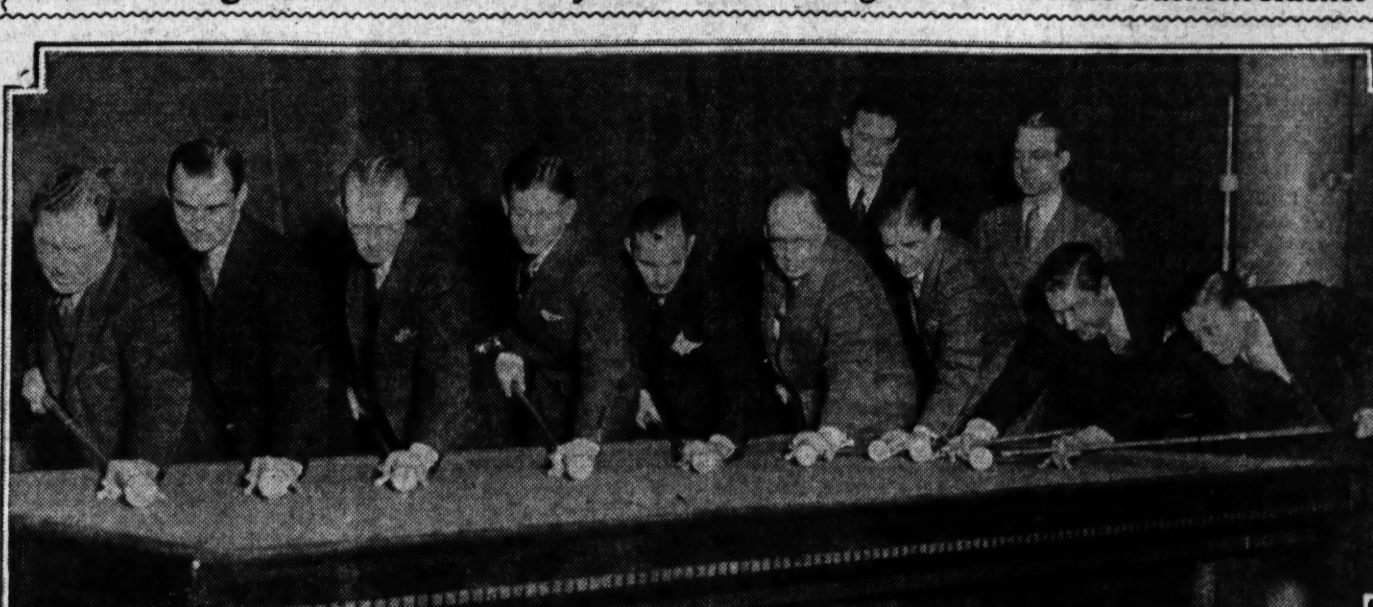

But it takes more than that to win in California. The referee, after proclaiming John champion, reversed himself a few minutes later and declared Pesek had lost on a foul, although he had pinned Stecher twice.

After that John had to eat crow until he could get his bearings. He quit the circuit and went into business all by himself, with Al Haft managing him. Even that proved none too remunerative. Today John is taking matches where he can get them. How far he has been taken to the bosom of the London group is the merest guesswork.

All Because of Rentrop.

PESEK and London once were matched for the N. B. A. title, but Pesek was reported injured as a result of being unhomed while following a courting match. At least that was one story. Another was that Pesek figured he had no chance to win if

Chicago Stadium in Hands of Receivers; Obligations $515,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—THE Chicago Stadium, $5,000,000 sports arena erected in 1929, was operating under a Federal receivership today.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson appointed Sidney Strodt, president of the corporation, and Fred Hummel as receivers on the petition of Charles E. Perry of Milwaukee, who holds $4000 worth of the corporation's bonds.

The Court, in appointing the receivers, authorized them to continue the operation of the huge building where most of Chicago's principal indoor sports events are held.

Following Perry's suit, a Chicago bank holding $1,750,000 first mortgage bonds now in default filed a foreclosure suit. Total current obligations, including bonds now due, was fixed at $515,000.

Herman, one of the most determined holdouts in the past, quickly came to terms yesterday after conferring at Los Angeles with his new boss, William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs. Salary terms were not announced.

Cubs Buy an Outfielder.

Veeck took time out in a busy day, to purchase Outfielder George Stainback, from Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League. In exchange, the Cubs will give cash, Pitcher Ed Baecht, Outfielder Marvin Gudat and a pitcher as yet unannounced.

Meineke paid a courtesy call on W. B. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and ended by accepting terms for next season. He was a persistent holdout last year, and his late start, after he Tiger John Pesek will be headliner on the arena mat program for Wednesday night, Feb. 1, according to word received here today from Promoter Tom Packs, following a conference he held in Cleveland with Al Haft, manager of the famed Nebraska heavyweights.

In outlining his plans for the coming arena program, Packs stated before his departure that he would try to line up Jim McMillen of Chicago, or Ernie Dundak of Omaha, to match against Pesek if he succeeded in signing the Nebraskan.

Pesek has figured in some memorable mat duels in this city. He lost to Stecher in a five-hour set at the Coliseum, several years ago, and defeated the clever London in a three-hour tussle at the same arena. Joe Toots Mondt, w. on he wrestled to a one-hour draw, Dick Daviscount, Renato Gardini and John Evko, whom he has met in this city. In his one appearance here this season, Pesek disposed of the turbulent Zaharias in 29 minutes, last Sept. 28.

Savoldi May Be Meant.

JOE SAVOLDI, one of the most personable young men the wrestling game has recruited and a boy with a ready-advised name through his Notre Dame connection, has been mentioned as a build-up possibility.

With Savoldi it is something again. Here is a boy with color and a most impressive physique. He can put on a fine show, as he proved at the Coliseum some time ago. His ready build, reputation, which he gained on football fields should pay the receipts, and all in all it would only take a few victories to develop the fact that he is an outstanding wrestler—what?

Joe already has been beaten by Joe Stecher in a match, and that was in California. No doubt since that time he has developed wonderfully and is ready to take on the best," according to the usual formula.

PERHAPS if Joe took himself and his profession in earnest, he might really become a

DIYAK RUNS 6 FURLONGS IN 1:11.2-5 AT MIAMI

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21.—The filly At Top finished in front and Ennis was runner-up, to give the Shandon Farm first and second in the Jefferson Derby here this afternoon. Klumora finished third in the first Derby of 1933.

Slapstick Pays $23 in Juvenile Race.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21.—A majority of the week-end crowd at Hialeah Park today got off on the right foot when the E. B. Stable's Idle Stefan, strongly ridden by "Duke" Bellizzi registered an easy victory in the curtain raiser. Paying $4.80, the son of Stefan the Great finished three lengths before Ebony Lady with Rally Round another three lengths away. Idle Stefan overtook Klumora rounding out of the back stretch and although running wide in the stretch had no trouble holding Ebony Lady safe the rest of the six furlong trip.

Slapstick, a two-year-old filly, many of them very green, sported slicks in the baby race and Slap Dash representing the Wheatley Stable gave Hank Mills his first triumph, winning by four lengths to return $23.70. Macadam headed Speedy Daughter out of the place. Speedy Girl broke in after the break and piled up several horses but Slap Dash clear of the jam rushed into a wide lead and left no doubt as to her superiority. Macadam and Speedy Daughter always were the chief contenders.

Flying Sallor had too much speed for his field in the third event and led virtually all the way to win by a length in a mild finish. Kate, the favorite, took the place by two lengths from Lebruyere, who ran a fair but not too good race. The winner's backers received $9.60 for $2.

The daily double on Idle Stefan and Flying Sallor, winners of the first and third races, respectively, paid $58.40.

The Everglades Stable's Dyak ran the fastest six furlongs of the meeting when he won the fourth event by five lengths in 1:11.2-5. Protractor, Brown Wisdom and Royal Ruffin were next in line heads apart. Dyak which paid $3.30 for $2 was off slowly, but "Cowboy" Callahan let him and his stride and catching the leaders at the head of the stretch the favorite drew far clear. Protractor had all his early foot and outlasted Brown Wisdom.

SEEN in THE STORES

By SYLVIA

AFTER browsing around in the housewares departments, playing with one gadget after another and wondering how much damage I could do with each, I've made up my mind that there are a lot worse jobs than being a kitchen mechanic. In fact, it should be a downright fun to experiment on a husband, or perhaps a guest, with the new trinkets that a k. m. now has a whole lot of. Some which looked quite tasty are mentioned in the following paragraphs. You can take them or leave them, just as you please, but if you leave them don't howl about the loss of your home-making reputation.

Gadgets which perform simple feats in a different way always have a fascination. I want to try them immediately. An educated strainer is like that. It is made of fattened wire and when shaken from side to side lets all liquid and pure fruit meat pass through, but keeps the pulp and seeds inside. Its claims are not very convincing, but I thought it would be swell for separating the yolks and whites of eggs—me being such an egg myself when attempting such a thing.

Another kitchen aid which concerns the cooking process concentrates on making steaks so juicy and tender that a husband won't be lured away to restaurants and other places. Instead of pounding the meat in a very rude fashion, this gadget gently massages it as it rolls along. And does a steak respond to this kind of treatment? I'm telling you that it does.

Among the seven wonders of the kitchen world is a salt and pepper shaker which never shows its temper, no matter how damp the weather. Both contain a small pump up meekly and take their shaking without any argument. But you must know how to distinguish black from white since you press a white valve for salt and a black one for pepper. Otherwise your food will turn out to be a seasoning riot. Glass and pewter combine attractively so this domesticated item can go to the table.

I understand a luncheon is a complete flop these days unless a hostess has some new way of serving her victuals; thus convincing the other members of her luncheon club that she is a wit at discovering new wrinkles. Fish moulds are made especially for awing guests. You can get them for individual portions or for a service of eight. And what they want is a minimum of a salmon salad searing and smart. I'll let you vision for yourself.

It seems that for years women have been coveting those water bottles like hotels use on their dining tables. But there was no way to get them. Spoons and forks might be lifted, but a woman simply couldn't walk out of the dining room with a water bottle under her arm. Attempts to buy them also met with similar bad luck. At last the retailers have gotten worn down by so much pleading for hotel water bottles and put them in stock. Etched glass ones with chromium plated frames may pacify.

There has been so much hurrah of late about the new lightweight irons that I asked a retailer what the shouling was about. He proceeded to explain that women who have been pushing six-pound irons about have been using up energy which should have been saved for rolling pins. (Maggie knew better.) After all, as he pointed out, it is not the amount of pressure which makes a shirt look good or bad, but the regulation of the heat and the inspiration of the ironer.

Have you heard about the run on china casseroles? A woman can get to the housewares sections fast enough to get a casserole out. Wondering why all the hurry for an everyday item, I investigated sufficiently to find that prices have taken a tumble. Whereas a woman had to have much more than a five-dollar bill in her pocket, a few years ago to indulge in the sport of putting china in the oven without having it break, now can purchase several for this tidy sum. Decorated ones with flowers blossoming on yellow or green please the culinary artists.

A nearsighted guest can be fooled into thinking you have gotten out your heirloom lace just for her benefit when you produce a cellulose doilies. They're pretty slick in more ways than one. (Photographic reproduction of old pieces of lace served as their inspiration. Rose point designs are finished. You can get them in many sizes, even some large enough to slip under the glass tops of vanities.)

Sometimes I think the world has gone haywire about chromium. Almost everything has taken on this ever polished outlook. Chromium-plated dinnerware has joined the list. Knives, forks, spoons and all the other eating tools are finished in chromium. I can't decide how well I like it so you'd better see it for yourself. And while you're about it, cast your glimmers over the sherbet glass holders and novel dinner bells.

Advice on Taking Out a No Trump With a Five-Card Minor Suit.

CONTINUING yesterday's article directly, there is a third reason for raising to two no trumps. Instead of making the suit take on a hand of a certain kind containing a five-card suit and no void. When the suit itself is not headed by top-ends that is, when it does not include two of the top three honors—but the hand itself is fairly strong, with from two to three tricks in primary and secondary form, there is much less risk of a vague or slipshod slam try ensuing if opener has a powerful hand and rightly bids beyond game because he sees slam likelihood from a suit fit and the high cards which appear to give early controls in the suits. This point is really more important than the other two, involving as it does very large swings. The danger of failing to reach a biddable, makeable slam is just as great as that of overbidding a trick and so sacrificing a sure game for a slam for which there is no reasonable play.

When you have bid a very weak or patchy suit, it is very difficult to know whether or not to sign off when the opening bidder gives you optimistic responses, and your hand does positively contain its full quota of primary tricks. This difficulty is avoided if you have not bid that suit, since partner's optimism is now based only on the top cards he attributes to you, not on the expectation of a suit to work with; if the suit clears up in the play, so much the better; but if it does not, then at least you have not misled your partner or done anything to make him mistrust your future raises or takeouts.

I think an illustration will make my point clear, more so than further explanations in general terms. The following hand actually came up in the South Jersey pair championship at Atlantic City last September; it might have been made in order for the present purpose. Each bid a no trump on

It is a rubber game, incidentally. I bid a spade on this hand but it matched point scoring the spring. Five extra points per trick on one hand may decide a championship. South held:

♠ A K J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
♥ A K J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
♦ A K J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
♣ A K J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2

Opener now counts his losers and decides that his partner's bid shows, in addition to solid spade support, four aces, and that he will have a finesse at least not to lose any clubs, picturing dummy's holding as five to the king-jack or at worst to the queen-jack.

The lead will probably be diamonds up to his king, and if he has to lose a diamond trick, he will have a finesse in clubs for the ace; or else, if a heart loser has to be worked off, he can lose the club finesse and still get the discards later, as if the hearts include a loser, responder must hold the ace of diamonds. This was perfect reasoning, and he thereupon bid six spades. The contract was, of course, defeated by a club and a diamond must be lost.

Had the response on the first round been two no trumps, not two spades, the bidding would have continued five spades, four (or perhaps five) spades, pass. Opening bidder now does not foresee or hope for any play in the club suit; he has only two aces and no hint of a club to shed so many losers, and he naturally does not bid slam. With ace-king or two aces in the opening hand it is in order to take a five-card suit headed by king-jack, as there will be at least a finesse against the queen, so that you need not wish to back down from a slam try developed by the opening bidder. The quality of your hand is not the sole fact that you did not intend to show weakness in the hand.

Monday—Responding to One No Trump.

NEW FROCKS for the BRIDGE PARTY

The amount of fun you'll have depends partly on what you put on—and remember, you want to look smart but not too formal

YOU don't have to be a man to be a veritable game hunter this winter. All America is playing bridge and other games. All you have to do is to get all dressed up and enter any contest that suits your fancy.

The dressing is half the game, in the minds of women. There are all kinds of bridge games that you may be invited to this winter.

The bridge luncheon is an innovation for those of you who have leisure time. This calls for a costume that looks smart in broad noon sunlight and still is dressy enough to make you feel well-dressed along about tea-time when the party breaks up.

Afternoon bridge parties call for a slightly more formal type of costume. Here is where a gay color plays a part, where brilliant clips, a scarf knotted a new way, sleeves cut handsomely to look their best when you reach out to play your trump card, and a cute hat to match, are the order of the day.

Still a third bridge party is the game played just before the men come trooping in for dinner, after which you all go somewhere and dance or travel on to some other bridge party. This is where an informal dinner dress is the best bet you can have.

Last, and not least by any chance, is the evening bridge party, very popular now, where men and women all play. This is the place where you must look to your laurels, for you must win, not only at cards, but at popularity. You'd be surprised how just the right frock scores on both counts.

ROUGHISH crepe fashions a majority of the dressy daytime things you will wear. If it is a cold, wintry day, the very thing for a bridge luncheon might be a dressy suit with some charming satin lingerie or brocade blouse.

When it comes to late afternoon, just before and possibly just after dinner, you must dress the part and don something you can dance in, if occasion arises.

And when it comes to one of those evening bridge parties, where your hostess says, "Don't dress," then put on the very smartest, most becoming in-between dress you can get your hands on.

For an occasion of this kind you want something that is extremely dressy without being formal; a gown in which you will look and feel your best, but which is suitable for really informal occasions.

You'll find a wealth of such gowns in the shops this winter, and choosing one that meets your own particular requirements will be a very easy job, to say nothing of being a lot of fun. And you'll be surprised how inexpensive some of these frocks are this year, too. A dressy and becoming dress no longer need be an expensive one.

This BEAUTY EXPERT Says:

THIS is written in New York and states in plain English that in years still fresh in my memory, it may seem premature to talk about spring.

Women who wish to be in good physical condition and sole is especially delicious. Mushrooms have never been as cheap as now and hot-house cucumbers are plentiful, so this menu will revitalize about these items. The dinner will start with a "seaside special" soup, followed by filet of sole with almond sauce, pan broiled mushrooms and sautéed cucumbers. With this a light salad of hearts of lettuce will be sufficient. The meal will end with a French vanilla ice cream with mocha marron sauce, hickory nut angel cake and coffee.

Special Soup. Cook one large potato and a soup bunch in a can of bouillon and one can of water. To this add the liquor from two cans of minced clams and one-half can of tomatoes. Cook all together until the vegetables are soft, then mash through a sieve. Add the minced clams and cook one-half an hour longer. Whip one pint of cream and heat slightly. Add two tablespoons of chopped parsley. Just before serving season with salt, pepper and paprika and fold the hot soup into the whipped cream. Serve at once.

Filet of Sole. Have the sole cut in filets. About two and a half pounds will serve eight people. Cut in pieces and wipe between towels. Dip in egg and dredge with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Heat two tablespoons of butter and two of bacon dripping and cook over a moderate fire for about 10 minutes or until a golden brown. Slightly brown one and a half cups of sliced blanched almonds in one-half cup of butter and pour over fish. Garnish platter with parsley and lemon slices.

Pan-Broiled Mushrooms. Peel one-and-one-half to two pounds of heavy mushrooms. Wash and wipe the caps. Place in an iron skillet with cap sides up. Dot each mushroom with butter and a little salt. Dredge with one tablespoon of sifted flour and pour over one-half cup of cream. Cook slowly for 30 minutes. Serve on rounds of toast.

Sautéed Cucumbers. Peel and cut in one-inch pieces the desired number of cucumbers. Soak in salted water for one hour, then drain and squeeze as dry as possible. Chop fine a little onion and fry in butter until soft and yellow but not brown. Add the cucumbers and a little pepper and cook until tender.

AN UNUSUAL FISH DINNER

By MRS. GLADYS T. LANG
Well-Known St. Louis Hostess

WITH modern refrigeration fish is now brought to the central states in perfect condition and sole is especially delicious. Mushrooms have never been as cheap as now and hot-house cucumbers are plentiful, so this menu will revitalize about these items. The dinner will start with a "seaside special" soup, followed by filet of sole with almond sauce, pan broiled mushrooms and sautéed cucumbers. With this a light salad of hearts of lettuce will be sufficient. The meal will end with a French vanilla ice cream with mocha marron sauce, hickory nut angel cake and coffee.

Simplicity is Rule In Newest Lingerie

PARIS. STREAMLINE simplicity is the rule for new lingerie this season in marked contrast to the lacy elaboration in vogue last year.

Night dresses, chemises and slips are cut on the bias to cling close to the figure without a distracting wrinkle and elaborate lace inserts are giving way to tiny lace edgings and fine embroidery. Valenciennes and fantasy laces dyed to match the fabrics which they trim are more in favor than the heavy ecru laces formerly used.

"Little girl styles" have laid their mark on the newest night dresses. Short cap sleeves, higher necklines and even "button up the back" models suggestive of pinafores are shown by the smartest designers. Soft pink or peach remain the favorite colors, although white and blue are also used.

One of the most striking night dresses indicative of the new trend is made of pale pink crepe with short sleeves and a round neckline in narrow Valenciennes lace designed to wrap over in the back and fasten with two buttons and a narrow tie. Another is of pale blue satin cut to fit closely to the figure, its only accent being a round tulle yoke recalling the design of a little girl's frock. Appliqued leaves of satin stitching about the neckline, fine hemstitching and embroidery are used as trims for others.

Chemises, long the basis of daytime lingerie wardrobes, are less in favor with the smart set this season except for wear under heavy wool frocks. Chic Parisians prefer an ensemble of girle, panties and slips for daytime wear.

Stuffed Pork Tenderloins. Two pounds pork tenderloins, bread poultry stuffing. Split the tenderloins to make pockets to hold the stuffing. Mix together a savory broiled filling of crumbled bread crumbs, fried onions, sweet marjoram, salt and pepper. Fill the pockets with the stuffing. Brown the tenderloins in butter on all sides in a frying pan, then cover with water, cover with a lid and let simmer for three-fourths hour, adding more water if necessary. Remove tenderloins, season and ticken the gravy and pour over the meat.

Mushrooms With Creole Sauce. Two green peppers, one large onion, one stalk celery, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, one small can tomatoes, one pound of broiled mushrooms. Fry chopped peppers, onion, celery in butter until tender. Dredge in flour and when mixed well add tomatoes and cook until thickened. Season with salt and pepper and pour over cooked mushrooms. Serve on slices of buttered toast. A lovely luncheon dish.

ANSWER to "Don't Dress" evening bridge invitation by wearing the cunning after-dark frock of rich red crepe shown at the left. Its puff sleeves join the bodice at huge armholes by ruchings of velvet, with marquette in between.

At the right is a smart trend suit gray and white, with individual knicker collar and lapels. The blouse is gray and has a snappy high throat tie, with dull metal buttons.

News for STAMP Collectors

New Issues. CURACAO—A recent surcharge on the 24-cent green was caused by a shortage of the 1-cent stamp. Soon after the appearance of the provisional, a new supply 14-cent stamp arrived from The Netherlands and the provisional was withdrawn.

DUTCH INDIES—The lower values of the regular postage stamps are to be issued soon in a new design. The illustration will show two kerbans before a plough and in the foreground a Javanese busy on the rice field. This design is to be used only on the values from 1 to 16 cents.

LUXEMBURG—The recent charity stamps of this country are pleasing. The portrait is a likeness of Countess Ermesinde who was born in 1196 and died in 1247. During her lifetime she ruled the country for 40 years with wisdom. An offer by some speculator to purchase the entire issue of the highest value was declined. The value of the stamps are as follows: 10c, olive green; 15c, violet; 18c, red; 20c, red; 25c, red; 30c, red; 35c, red; 40c, red; 45c, red; 50c, red; 55c, red; 60c, red; 65c, red; 70c, red; 75c, red; 80c, red; 85c, red; 90c, red; 95c, red; 1.00, red.

MACAO—The following provisionals are to be issued: 12c on 24c; 15c on 32c; 4c on 12c; 5c on 6c; 15c on 16c; and 20c on 6c.

NEW ZEALAND—This country has now gone Goya but the stamps are really issued for a very good cause. First, it is a regular postage issue of one penny, printed in rose from an engraving on copper plate. Second, there is one penny tax on the stamp which is used to provide a fund for cancer research. Spain's Goya was a speculative issue, pure and simple, while this design shows a nude woman posed on a pedestal holding a cup aloft in a gesture of triumph. The base of the pedestal is labeled "Hygea." One-half of the figure typifies health and strength while the other half suggests the ravages of cancer.

The stamp is an upright oblong about the size of the Emerson Memorial of the United States. The work was done by H. T. Post and the stamps are printed in two panes of 40, with 120 to the sheet.

MEXICO—Airmail stamps recently chronicled have been used with stamps. They are Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Taylor, Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt, Harding, Wilson and Taft.

Small Breaks. If you are continually finding small breaks and ails in the bathroom towels you are certain to find your hubby or grown son is the guilty party. He is wiping his razor blades on them and has gotten careless in the process. Give him a special towel cloth if you would prevent these little breaks.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

A Bug's-Eye View.

LAY on the grass. So near, the green, sharp smell of grass filled my nose; the rough, salty taste of dirt was on my lips; the blades were bars across my eyes. Not very tall grass, but, lying so close, it seemed as high as the forest, and as filled with mystery and menace. Before me stretched winding tunnels, secret dens, yawning pits. Monstrous stars rambled along those tunnels, coiled in those dens. Monsters such as I had never seen in my life. Great, hairy, spotted beasts; fanged serpents; creatures with malformed bodies and bulging eyes; eyes like horrors with gaping, bloody mouths. And danger oozed and clotted in those grass roots. Death lurked in those tangled shadows.

For long, sleepy moments I stared at those horrors, as another bug might have stared. I had forgotten my normal, man-sized world. I had forgotten the power and freedom of the life above the grass roots. I was drugged by the power of that tiny, terrible world of inch worms and ants—the grass-stem world, where life squirmed, trapped in darkness. For a space it was real to me—as real as it was to any bug.

For a space its power over me was real, I believed in it so thoroughly that I did not question that power. Later, toward evening, I climbed a mountain. Not an easy climb. Not nearly as easy as lying in the grass roots. A narrow, thorny trail through the chaparral. But presently I came out into the clearing. Far below me the land stretched—far and far—tumbled hills, deep ravines, small clearings, set like golden tiles in the dark bronze of the forest. Over it all, twilight flowed in a quiet, green tide.

Many things lay beneath that tide. Farms lay beneath it, with the going and coming of men and their tools and herds—and their hopes and fears. The forest lay under it, quickening now with the stealthy night life of the beasts. And, somewhere, my little patch of grass lay under it, with its mimic dangers that had seemed so real and near from my bug's-eye view.

ALL THIS LAY BELOW. BUT FROM THE MOUNTAIN TOP, MY VIEW WAS SO WIDE THAT NONE OF IT CLUTTERED ME. I knew it was all there. I knew there was ugliness there as well as beauty; pain as well as joy; danger as well as peace; but they no longer filled my senses with their terrible importance. Because I was separated from them by a healthy distance, they fell into their natural place in the scheme of things, and I resumed my natural relation to them.

Then, presently, the twilight deepened into amber, the dead ravines flowed with wine, until the land lay drenched in purple. And the sky, which had been a brittle, bright blue, opened—opened, I knew there was ugliness there as well as beauty; pain as well as joy; danger as well as peace; but they no longer filled my senses with their terrible importance. Because I was separated from them by a healthy distance, they fell into their natural place in the scheme of things, and I resumed my natural relation to them.

GEORGE O'BRIEN as he looks off stage.

He's been trying to talk Spencer Tracy into making the trip with him and has even gone so far as to obtain Tracy's passport, just in case. But the chances are that picture work will keep Spencer Tracy in Hollywood.

Not a physical culture fiend, O'Brien is pretty well sold on its benefits. He conducts a sort of unofficial health school at his Malibu Beach place. He enjoys taking as a house guest a friend whose health has run down and, by means of systematic diet and exercise, restore his weight and energy. The recipient of an injury of some sort in nearly every picture, O'Brien does not take chances, in the ordinary sense of the word. He risks his neck a hundred times a year, but each stunt he does on the screen is carefully planned and rehearsed to eliminate as much unnecessary risk as possible.

"Audiences demand that each succeeding western picture have more and more thrills than the last," he explained, "and when you consider how long western pictures have been made, you can realize how big a job it is getting to be."

O'Brien does a stunt in his newest picture that is similar to the one which gained his first screen opportunity, that of the leading man in "The Iron Horse." The stunt is the boarding of a train from the saddle of a horse traveling at a 40-miles-an-hour clip. Rough ground makes this trick far more difficult than many screens have to do. Incidentally, which may interest the girl fans, George is unmarried. Never has been married and is not thinking of it.

In Grandmother's Time
Grandma always had little bags of lavender in her linen drawer to give the bedding a dainty perfume. It is a nice practice to continue, as it gives one a restful feeling to relax in such a pleasant atmosphere.

Too Much Starch
If you have made more starch than you need, pour the balance into a glass jar and cover with a lid. Place in the refrigerator until ready to use, then dilute with boiling water.

HEALTH TODAY'S PATTERN

Brief articles prepared by experts, Edited by Dr. J. J. Galdston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Clammy Hands

OLD, clammy and perspiring hands represent a characteristic type of functional disturbance in the circulatory system. This disturbance is technically called acrocyanosis. The term is derived from the Greek akron, meaning extremity, and kyanosis, meaning dark blue color.

The color of the hands is usually reddish blue. At times both the hands and the feet are affected, more commonly, however, the hands alone.

A characteristic of this condition, too, is the abrupt change of the color of the skin in the region of the wrists, the lower portion being blue, the remaining portion being of normal color.

This condition, which is rare, is seen more often in women than in men, and in males it is more commonly seen during the early 'teen age.

The complaining individual may show no other symptoms and may seem to be in good health. It is not infrequently, however, to find such an individual suffering from a mild hypothyroidism, that is, an underfunctioning of the thyroid gland. In the opposite condition, hyperthyroidism, the hands are usually moist, red and warm.

Essentially, acrocyanosis represents a disturbance of a portion of the circulatory system. According to one English authority, the condition is due to a spasm of the minute blood vessels of the hands. These blood vessels are in a constant state of tension and the blood in the capillaries is poor in oxygen.

Not infrequently this condition may follow on debilitating illness or even on acute infections. It is at times, too, associated with chronic disease of the joints.

In the treatment of hypothyroidism, thyroid substance in prescribed quantities may help. Exercise will benefit the sufferer.

Circulation in the hands may be improved by contracting the fingers forcibly and holding the arm up in an elevated position for five minutes several times daily.

Hamburger and Rice Loaf

Two pounds hamburger steak, four cups tomatoes, one cup boiled rice, two tablespoons butter, one cup bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Brown the meat in the butter, then add tomatoes, rice and seasoning. Turn into a greased baking pan and mold into shape. Sprinkle crumbs over the top, dot with butter and bake in a slow oven for three-quarters of an hour. A grating of sharp cheese may be added to the top before baking if the flavor is desired. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Rust on the Sheets

If you find rust marks on your sheets from the coil springs, give the springs a coat of white or light-colored paint. This will protect them from rusting and causing any trouble.

Bright and Soft Tints

For every-day dresses soft tints will always be serviceable and in good taste. The gay patterns may be worn for house-dresses and be very uplifting to the morale, but subdued colors are better taste for street wear for the matron.

PARENTS

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

by Alice Judson Peale

Forced Confessional

A YOUNG woman of otherwise attractive personality is extremely rude to anyone who asks her a personal question of any sort.

She cannot bear to be asked, for instance, where she expects to spend her vacation; whether she is going down-town today; or whether she has a headache.

Such entirely polite and utterly harmless inquiries fill her immediately with an inner rage and she turns upon the questioner either with a freezing silence or with some unpleasant sarcastic remark.

The difficulty goes back to the time when as a child her mother demanded—her each evening a "confession" of the day's doings. On these occasions she felt she must tell every little naughtiness, every wrong thought, every wicked wish. She believed that if she did not, she would receive the most terrible punishment from God.

Experience had already taught her that to withhold even the smallest detail would cause her mother not to speak to her until she broke down and told all. This system of her mother's had robbed her of every shred of privacy and made her afraid even to think her own thoughts.

At adolescence, when at last the courage to stand up against this nightly inquisition developed within her, she swore to herself with good taste. The gay patterns may be worn for house-dresses and be very uplifting to the morale, but subdued colors are better taste for street wear for the matron.

She is quite well aware that she has carried this attitude to extreme lengths, and that it has already made her a number of enemies, but she cannot help herself. The force of a resentment too long suppressed, and now arising in all its violence makes her unable to obey her better judgment.

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

by Mary Graham Bonner

Willy Nilly Works.

"Now," exclaimed Willy Nilly, "I'll have to clean up this shop."

"All the outside guests had left, and Mrs. Quacko was too tired to help any more."

"I'm a wreck, a duck wreck," she said. "I simply must rest."

"I must go and do my lessons!" cried Flotilla Bottila. "I'm late with them now. I'll be kept in tomorrow if I don't know them."

"I simply must have some exercise," said Rip, the Dog, and he bounded out of the door after Flotilla.

"I simply must attend to my store," said Top Notch, the Rooster. "Things are at sixes and sevens or twos and threes or whatever the expression is." He strutted off.

"Well," said Willy Nilly, as he started to clean the repair shop, "I have no more backbone than a flake of snow."

"There's a lot of extra work to be done and they've all left me, except you, Mrs. Quacko. I should have made them stay. Now you get a broom and we'll do the best we can by ourselves."

"I'll tell you what, Willy Nilly," quacked Mrs. Quacko. "Just let me have 10 minutes of sleep and then I'll help you clean the shop. I simply must put my head under my wing for a few minutes."

"All right," agreed Willy Nilly. Mrs. Quacko put her head under her wing and Willy Nilly started in with the work. But when Mrs. Quacko was awake once more Willy Nilly had everything in order.

"Oh, what made you do it all yourself?" she quacked. "But deep in her duck heart she was awfully glad he had!"

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11. L.D.—FASHIONED brewery equipment, long idle, is being returned to work in pictures made in anticipation of the possible legalization of beer.

A complete set of beer-making apparatus, appropriately covered with studio cobwebs, plays a big part in the new Buster Keaton-Jimmie Durante comedy, and the fun begins when the two brush off the cobwebs and go into the business of wholesale thirst-quenching.

This one is already in production, and should be good for laughs whether or not the beverage is legalized. Two other studios have under consideration melodramas or more serious yarns dealing with the beer question.

MOVIE—ACTING as a sideline brings pretty pennies into the pockets of several studio employees who leave their desks, errands or shoe stands and put on make-up only to return complacently to their routine jobs afterward. There's Eddie Brophy, M-G-M production manager, who gets screen credit when he appears, and rather often. And Oscar, the Paramount bootblack, who acts nearly as much as he shines shoes, but when not acting can be found at his stand.

Columbia offers Mozelle Britton, red-haired casting assistant, who has taken roles in three recent productions: Ann Marion (Ann Pennington) in "The Sign of the Cross," a secretary, who appears in "Hollywood Speaks"; Bret Black, office boy, who now has a role with Buck Jones in "Lost Valley Gold"; and Tense Gilbert, script girl, who played a bit in "So This Is Africa."

They all have their old jobs waiting when they wipe off the grease-paint.

Only suggested in the stage play, "Men Must Fight," the destruction of New York by enemy air forces is to be shown on the screen and the limited stage setting of "Clear All Wires" is to be expanded to cover a great deal of geography.

QUITE A COMMOTION
(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)
"There was quite a commotion for a short time among the girls of Miss Scott's class, who were giving the dance over at the Bijou Friday evening. While a number of them were out on the stage doing one of the numbers, the rest of them in the wings, a polecat ran along the rear of the stage and sent forth a mephitic blast. The rear doors of the building were open, evidently left so by the girls, who ran in and out a good deal, and the loud smelly cat evidently came up the alley and walked in."

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT
Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
Do you think it is all right for my mother to open and read my mail, although I am eighteen years old and well developed for my age?
Blondie.

Ans.—If your mother is strong and willing, steady of hand, cool of head and stout of heart, Auntie B. does not see any reason why she should not avail herself of this experience.

BRIDE KILLS MAN SHE WED SECRETLY 3 MONTHS AGO

Robert Tunstead Shot to Death by Wife at Door of Her Mother's Home at 1742 College Av., East St. Louis.

HE WAS PUT OUT AFTER QUARREL

When He Breaks Glass Trying to Get in Again Woman Fires—She Is Arrested, but Released on Own Bond.

Robert Tunstead was shot to death last night by his wife, Mrs. Frances Donovan Tunstead, as he pounded for admittance on the door of her mother's home, 1742 College avenue, East St. Louis, where she had been living since leaving him immediately after their secret marriage three months ago.

He had gone there about 8:25 o'clock, had quarreled with his wife, the daughter of the late Jeremiah Donovan, wealthy East Side grocer, and had been put out of the house by her brothers who said he was intoxicated.

He Breaks Glass.
The door had been locked behind him, but Tunstead pounded on it heavily, his blows shattering the glass panel. Meanwhile his wife had obtained a revolver and fired one shot through the broken glass.

It struck him in the abdomen, and Tunstead fell. He died on the way to St. Mary's Hospital. Tunstead was about 30 years old, and lived at 802 Eighth avenue. He and his wife, police were informed, had not lived together since their secret marriage.

His wife, Mrs. Frances Tunstead, who 20 years old, was standing over his prostrate body on the porch of her mother's home when neighbors, attracted by the shot, rushed to the scene. She was hysterical.

Released on Bond.
Mrs. Tunstead was taken to the city jail and released shortly thereafter on a $10,000 bond which she was permitted to sign for herself. Police did not question her in detail.

The bond is returnable next Saturday before Justice of the Peace Stocker. He said Chief of Police Leahy had recommended to him that Mrs. Tunstead be released on her own bond.

"I know the family," Leahy explained to a reporter. "She'll be down here when I want her, and from what I have learned the shooting was justifiable."

Members of the immediate family would not discuss the marriage, but a cousin, James Donovan, 3022 Caseyville avenue, said they had not known of it until last night. Tunstead's body was taken to the Burke undertaking establishment, 2000 Broadway street. He was formerly a truck driver, but had been employed for about two years, police said. His wife is employed as a clerk in the National Stockyards Bank at National City.

ROMANCE QUITS COLOSSEUM
Light Now Dims Even Full of Full Moons.

ROME, Jan. 21.—The millions of girls who have been kissered in the Colosseum by moonlight will regret to learn that romance has fled the spot.

The Flavian amphitheater is still there, and the full moon comes once a month as always, but Mussolini himself—albeit unwittingly—has driven away the romance. When he ordered the building of broad Venezia and the Colosseum he was not thinking of the multitude of hearts that had beat double time in the great theater. But the street cut a wide swath in the hill that insulates the Colosseum from downtown Rome. A river of light poured down the new street, inundates the ruins and dims even the fullest of full moons.

Two Drowned in Stolen Auto.
By the Associated Press.
SALISBURY, Md., Jan. 21.—Two boys were drowned tonight when the stolen automobile in which they were riding hit a tree and plunged into about six feet of water in John's Lake here. One of the boys was identified as Fulton Morris, 16 years old, of Salisbury. James Cordey, of Laurel, Del., had parked the car earlier in the evening on a Salisbury street.
